TRIPLE DRIVE FOR CRUSHING AXIS TALKED

Allied Capitals Speculate on Second Front, Thrusts at Japs From Russia.

BERLIN SOUNDS THREAT

Use of Siberian Bases By U. S. Hinted After FDR and Molotov Agreement.

(By Associated Press)

Allied capitals rang with speculation today on the prospects of three vast and perhaps imminent developments aimed at the final downfall of Germany and Japan and the shaping of a new world at peace.

While Berlin sounded a new threat of Adolf Hitler's "coming great offensive," the United Nations envisaged:

1. Creation of a second front in Europe in 1942.

2. A possible Russian attack on Japan.

3. The opening of Soviet air bases to American bombers for attacks on Japan.

In Washington, congressional quarters expressed belief that the "full understanding" reached between President Roosevelt and Russia's Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov might open bases at Vladivostock to U. S. bomber squadrons.

"If the Russians give us the right to use those bases, I feel confident that the United States could bring Japan to her knees in a short time," declared Senator Wheeler (D-Mont).

Others voiced the conviction that nothing in the mutual-aid agreement between the United States and Russia would precipitate the Russians into war with Japan while they were so heavily engaged with Hitler in the west.

It was noted, too, that the Russian-British agreement emphasized that it was directed against Germany or any of the states associated with her in acts of aggression in Europe."

The treaty stressed the words "in Europe" seven times, clearly indicating Russia wanted to be free to maintain the status quo of an uneasy neutrality toward Japan.

Sorely pressed China watched anxiously, with the Chinese press bluntly calling on Russia to strike at Japan now.

In Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's wartime capital at Chungking, the newspaper Ta Kung Pao declared.

"Russia should realize that the

Jeeps to Arrive Today for Bond Sale Campaign

Under command of Major Charles S. Robinson, public relations officer for the Fifth Corps Area Quartermaster Corps, a caravan of Army Jeeps was to arrive in Mansfield today as the second stop on a visit to principal cities of the state to promote sale of war savings bonds and stamps.

The cars were met at the outskirts of the city by a police escort when they arrived from Springfield. Shortly after noon, they drew up at the square, and Major Robinson's Jeep climbed up the ramp of a flat-bed truck.

The caravan was welcomed to the city by Mayor W. J. Locke, and Paul M. Eliot, county bond sale chairman, and Roger H. Bolin, Jeep Day chairman, gave brief talks in which they called upon residents of Richland county to buy $387,600 worth of war bonds this month. This amount, they pointed out, would buy 408 Jeeps for the Army.

Major Robinson responded, and told about the development of the Jeep and its importance to the Army. Music for the ceremony

U. S. Fliers Tell of Shouting 'Remember Pearl Harbor' As They Smashed 9 to 11 Jap Warships Near Coral Sea

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN

PEARL HARBOR, T. H.—(AP)—American fliers, many yelling "remember Pearl Harbor" as they pushed their bombers into screaming dives, sank nine and possibly 11 Japanese warships and transports at Tulagi Harbor, Solomon islands, May 4 as a prelude to the battle of the Coral Sea.

Participants in the battle said here today they were certain that two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports were sunk. A seaplane tender and a third transport also possibly were sunk as well as numerous small boats.

Aircraft carrier squadrons delivered the furious assault and all returned without a scratch to their personnel.

Devastating as the blow was to the enemy, it was but a sample of what was to come, for one of the officers in the engagement said:

"We gave them a larger dose of the same stuff" in the ensuing battle of the Coral sea, which lasted a week.

Lieut. Commanders Joseph Taylor, Danville, Ill., and William Burch, Paducah, Ky., vividly described the blistering attack on the enemy base 1,000 miles northeast of Australia on little Florida island in the center of the Solomon group.

Burch said:

"Aboard the carrier we had not heard anything about the little harbor of Tulagi until late one night when word was passed over the loudspeaker: 'Prepare all squadrons

DESCRIBES HOW U. S. AIRCRAFT CARRIER SANK

Reporter Aboard 30-000-Ton Lexington Says Blasts Sent Ship Down.

By W. F. TYREE
(UP Staff Correspondent)

ABOARD U. S CRUISER, Southwest Pacific, May 10—(Delayed)—The U. S. navy's oldest aircraft carrier, the 33,000-ton U. S. S. Lexington, was wounded by enemy bombs in the battle of the Coral sea and several hours later blew up like a Fourth of July firecracker.

The end came when flames from leaking gasoline lines reached her torpedo lockers, detonating them with a mighty roar.

Most of the great ship's personnel, however, had been safely removed a few minutes before the blast.

Naval officers considered her loss a light price to pay for the destruction of 23—perhaps 24—Japanese warships in the Coral sea engagement, which was the first big clash between U. S., and Japanese naval air forces.

A few minutes after her torpedoes went off, the Lexington heeled over and slipped from sight beneath the water. The blast was so terrific that destroyers lingering nearby after aiding in rescue of the carrier's crew were almost lifted from the water

In the wild melee of air action which finally sent remnants of the Japanese task force fleeing from the wreck-strewn scene of battle, the Lexington, launched in 1925 and commissioned in December, 1927, had played a brilliant part.

Her planes—80 to 90 of them—had taken off and struck powerful blows against the enemy. While they were in the air, Japanese aircraft attacked the carrier, diving through terrific anti-aircraft

CALLS IT FAKE

Dealer Insists Big Companies Created Rubber Shortage.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Elliott E. Simpson, an independent rubber dealer, reiterated before a senate agriculture subcommittee today that the nation's rubber shortage is a "fake" created by the "big four' rubber companies for their own selfish gain."

"The 'big four' rubber companies—United States Rubber company, B. F. Goodrich Rubber company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, and Firestone Tire and Rubber company—are purposely confusing the American people for their own selfish gain," he charged.

Simpson, who earlier this week was appointed counsel for a house weights and measures subcommittee studying the rubber problem, appeared today before the senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D., Ia.)

EIGHT KILLED

Heavy Army Bomber Crashes on Back After Take-off.

SARASOTA, Fla. —(AP)— Eight army fliers were killed and two injured early today when a four-engined bomber crashed into Sarasota bay.

Major Gardiner Tiske, Sarasota air base intelligence officer, said the heavy ship cleared the runway on a pre-dawn training flight and flew about a mile when it went out of control. It landed on its back in a foot and a half of water about 200 feet from shore. Two of the crew were pulled from the wreckage with only minor injuries.

As Roosevelt Conferred With Molotov

Allied capitals buzzed with rumors today of a triple drive against the Axis largely as a result of the historic conference, pictured above, between President Roosevelt and Soviet Commissar of Foreign Affairs, M. V. Molotov. In their talks the two leaders reached an agreement on the "urgency of the task" of forming a second European front. Molotov arrived in the U. S. secretly May 29 and departed June 4.

RUBBER DRIVE STARTS MONDAY

FDR Orders 16-Day Campaign To Collect Scrap; Service Stations to Help.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt announced today an intense campaign for collection of the nation's old scrap rubber supply would start June 15 and last through June 30.

Individuals were urged by the chief executive to search their basements, attics and back yards for all items of rubber that have been discarded or can be discarded.

Offices, factories and farms also are being asked to cooperate.

Through arrangements with the oil industry 400,000 filling stations will serve as collection depots. They will pay one cent a pound for the rubber brought in, and the government will reimburse them that sum.

President Roosevelt, declaring that the rubber situation was extremely serious, again urged the people to cut down on pleasure driving and reduce both automobile speed and mileage.

He told a press conference he had no idea when a person with four tires might be able to get new ones. It may be a long, long time, he said. So, he added, it is a matter of common sense to make existing tires wear as long as possible.

The collection drive will be inaugurated at 12:01 a. m., on Monday, June 15 and concluded at midnight on Tuesday, June 30. Thus it will last through 16 full days. Actually, the president will start it off informally with a five minute radio talk tonight at 6.45 o'clock, eastern war time.

There was much shouting of "Heil Hitler" by the deportees and friends who came to the railroad station to see them off.

GOOD NEWS

Reports on War Cheer House Appropriations Group.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Cheered by army reports beyond "the fondest optimism of six months ago," a house appropriations subcommittee today continued closed hearings on the war department's request for $39,417,000,000 for 1943 by calling up Gen. Howard K. Loughry, chief of the army finance section.

The subcommittee heard Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of supply, who gave the members a first-hand report on conditions in England and the United Nations' other Atlantic fronts.

"His report was one of 'good cheer,'" Chairman Snyder (D., Pa.) declared. "It was much better than anyone could have hoped for a year ago, or even six months ago.

LUTZ TO LEAVE AS PROSECUTOR

John C. O'Donnell to Serve In Office Until Lutz Ends Service in Army.

With Harold Lutz, Richland county prosecutor, scheduled for induction into the army June 20, John C. O'Donnell, Mansfield attorney, today was appointed acting prosecutor until Lutz returns to civilian life.

The appointment was made by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston and became effective immediately. Lutz said he will leave the prosecutors' office at the end of this week for a week's vacation before taking his final army examination a week from Saturday.

O'Donnell, a Democrat like Lutz, has been practicing law for 18 years. He came to Mansfield in 1928 from New Philadelphia to become a law partner of Earl A. Nist. In recent years, however, he has practiced alone. He is a graduate of Notre Dame university and is chairman of the Richland county Democratic executive committee.

Under the Ohio statute, Lutz will retain his title as prosecutor until his term expires in January, 1945, and may return to his post at any time. He took office in January, 1941. He is 35 and is single.

City Council to Take Only Informal Look at Airport Job

If city council makes any investigation of the manner in which the $5,000 appropriated for the improvement of the municipal airport is being spent, it will be a highly informal one.

Councilman Clifford G. Knarr, sponsor of the improvement bill, who announced Wednesday that he would demand that fellow-councilmen visit the airport at the next council meeting, said today he had changed his plans.

Knarr said that he had contacted most of the councilmen personally without waiting for a council meeting and that they had all agreed to inspect the port "at their convenience."

Councilman Knarr said that he had not insisted upon any special date for inspection of the port and that he himself had not visited it as yet.

"I talked with most of the councilmen," said Knarr, "and they agreed there was a need for inspecting the port. No date was set for a tour, however, and all said they would make their own trips."

Knarr said Wednesday he would demand that council inspect the port to see "if the city's funds are being spent as designated" after learning that the mayor had taken over Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff's power of hiring employes for work at the airport.

Unknown to Wolff, the mayor hired a man and two boys to start work on the $5,000 program of improvement last Monday. Wolff said he knew nothing about the move although council had put supervision of the airport directly in the service director's hands.

TICKETS TAKING SHAPE FOR DEM, G.O.P. CONTESTS

Dockery, 'Surprise Candidate,' Opposes McGregor in Race For District Congress.

The Democratic and Republican primary tickets in the county, district, and state were taking form today as most of the candidates filed their petitions for places on the August ballot. The filing deadline is 6:30 p. m. today.

Two "surprise" candidates, both Republicans, filed today for congress in the 17th district and for state senator in the 27th-29th district. Richland county is in both districts.

Col. Oliver H. Dockery of Newark, a retired army officer, filed for congress against Congressman J. Harry McGregor, who, it appeared, earlier would have no primary opposition. Dockery, who saw 40 years of army service before his retirement eight years ago, has twice been a candidate for congress. He lost to Congressman McGregor in the special primary in February, 1940.

Elmer E. Borchert of Grafton, Lorain county, filed today as the fifth Republican candidate for the state senatorial nomination in the 27th-29th district. Candidates who had already entered the contest were Joseph Jameson and P. H. Rogers, incumbents from Lorain county; C. J. Pittenger of Richland county, and Attorney Ralph A. Winter of Medina county Only one senator will be elected this time in the district. It has had two for the past two years.

In the Richland county picture, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston filed today for re-election while Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch filed as his probable opponent for common pleas judge in the fall election. Judge Huston is a Democrat and Judge Kalbfleisch a Repub-

RETAINS BILL

Mayor Keeps Gasoline Station Measure; Last Day to Sign.

An ordinance passed by city council on June 2 to limit the operation of gasoline service stations in Mansfield to a 72-hour week was still being held in the office of the mayor today.

Council Clerk Robert R. Black said today was the last day of the 10-day period allowed for signing or vetoing of ordinances. If the mayor does not sign it or veto it, it becomes law without his signature. Black said all other legislation at the same session had been signed and returned to him.

The mayor signed a previous ordinance which would have established a curfew on the operation of stations from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. but a court injunction filed by the Standard Oil company prevented enforcement of the ordinance pending a court decision.

Council passed the new ordinance by a 5 to 3 vote.

Japs Lose 20 Ships In Big 8-Day Battle

U. S. and Allied Forces Score Stunning Blow; Enemy Aircraft Carrier Sunk, Two Others Badly Damaged. Planes, Men Destroyed.

(By International News Service)

WITH U. S. PACIFIC FLEET AT SEA—(Delayed)—With American air and sea forces dominating the action, the great eight-day battle of the Coral sea has ended in a complete rout for the Japanese whose staggering losses totalled 20 ships, including one aircraft carrier sunk and two badly damaged, three light cruisers, three destroyers and three big transports sunk, and literally thousands of men and scores of planes destroyed.

The stunning victory scored by the combined American, British and Australian force definitely has thwarted the enemy in his attempt to gain control of the New Guinea-Solomon area and has materially lessened the threat of invasion of Australia in the opinion of officers who waged the remarkable fight against the powerful Jap striking force.

Lost to the enemy, however, was the United Nations base of Tulagi in the Solomon islands, but it was scorched to the earth before it was evacuated and the price paid for it by the Japanese was a dear one in ships, planes and men.

In brief, here is how the battle progressed day-by-day:

May 2—Jap four-engine patrol planes bombed Australian and American air units at Tulagi and an enemy naval force was spotted approaching the base.

May 3—Under the pressure of enemy raids, U. S. and Australian forces evacuated Tulagi under a "scorched earth" policy, but saving many of their planes, one of which—a Catalina flying boat—was successfully towed by air to another United Nations base.

May 4—The Jap naval force approaching Tulagi caught by a United Nations task force under Rear Admiral Frank J. Fletcher, U. S. N., and when American torpedo and dive-bombing planes had completed the assault the toll of the enemy was:

Two light cruisers sunk.
One light cruiser beached and sunk in shallow water.
Three destroyers sunk.
One 20,000-ton transport sunk.
Two 9,000-ton transports sunk.

At least 6,000 Jap soldiers aboard the transport killed and drowned, with only two members of this seaborne land force known to have been saved.

With the remnants of this force, however, the Japs occupied Tulagi.

May 8—Jap reinforcements consisting of four aircraft carriers, six cruisers, 12 destroyers and numerous trans-

Navy Makes Final Accounting of Coral Sea Campaign

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The navy, in a final accounting of the two months' Coral sea campaign, revealed today that more than 15 Japanese ships were sunk, including an aircraft carrier, while the United States lost three naval vessels, including the big aircraft carrier Lexington.

Besides the Lexington, the U. S. Navy lost the tanker Neosho and the destroyer Sims.

The Japanese casualties, in addition to the ships sunk, included a loss of more than 100 aircraft, the probable sinking of two other warships and severe damage to more than 20 ships. The damaged Japanese ships included a carrier, three cruisers, two aircraft tenders and three destroyers.

ZERO HOUR: Nazi Offensive Nears; New Kharkov Battle on

(By Associated Press)

Marshal Fedor von Bock's armies were reported attacking today in a great new battle around Kharkov, the Soviet "Pittsburgh" in the Ukraine, amid indications that zero hour may be near for the long-heralded German summer offensive.

A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters said Germans troops east of Kharkov carried out successful attacks which were increasing in volume.

Tersely, the Soviet command acknowledged that the new German drive was making headway against bitter Russian resistance.

"During the day of June 11 in the Kharkov sector, our troops waged fierce defensive engagements against advancing enemy tanks and infantry," a Red army communique said. It added, however, that there had been no important changes overnight.

On the Crimean front, Soviet dispatches reported that the defenders of long-besieged Sevastopol, key Black sea naval base, were counter-attacking, improving some of their positions and bloodily repulsing fresh German assaults.

The Russian high command said nearly 15,000 Germans had been killed and more than 50 tanks destroyed in three days of fighting on the approaches to Sevastopol, but dispatches to Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, conceded that the situation was "extremely tense."

Hitler's field headquarters declared the eight-day-old German offensive "gained ground in stubborn fighting" and asserted that repeated Russian counterattacks "collapsed with heavy losses."

A Berlin broadcast said the attacks on Sevastopol and east of Kharkov were the prelude to Hitler's "coming great offensive, and indicated the big push would start once Sevastopol has been reduced and the German lines straightened out below Kharkov.

ports caught at sea by Adm. Fletcher's task force. When the smoke from the battle lifted, the toll on this Jap force was:

The aircraft carrier Rhukaku sunk.

The aircraft carrier Shokaku badly damaged.

The aircraft carrier Suikaku unhit, but lost all but 20 of its planes. (This carrier normally bases about 60 planes.)

The fourth aircraft carrier seriously damaged by high-altitude bombing.

Later in the day shore-based Jap "double zero" fighters, German-made Messerschmitts and Jap "190's" engaged carrier-based American planes with heavy losses to both sides. Damage inflicted by United Nations in this phase of the battle was heavier than that suffered because the Allied forces were able to operate under overcast skies while the enemy was handicapped by an unlimited ceiling.

United Nations naval losses were:

The U. S. destroyer Sims.

One tanker.

May 9—Weather situation reversed, with Jap force hidden under overcast skies, United Nations forces in the clear. Jap torpedo planes and dive bombers scored hits on U. S. carriers in the United Nations forces, but they managed to escape damage through skillful maneuvering. When American reinforcements began to arrive, the Japs retired with the American units chasing them to within 350 miles of Tulagi. Later a Jap aircraft patrol spotted United Nations force and it withdrew ending the battle.

(Editor's Note—Subsequently it was announced that although one U. S. carrier, the Lexington, managed to escape serious damage in the encounter it later blew up and sank because of a fire aboard it. The ship sank hours after the battle.)

Reinforcing of Pacific Bases Seen

PEARL HARBOR—(AP)—Speedy American reinforcements may be sent to western Pacific bases and all Pacific key points, it is predicted as a result of the battle of Midway.

The Japanese defeat is felt to have removed, at least from the predictable future, any threat that the United States mainland might be invaded.

Therefore, it is believed such forces which may have been held on the west coast of the United States as a defense against possible invasion have now been freed and can be sent to areas where they are more urgently needed.

The battle of Midway showed the effectiveness of aircraft in coastal defense to such an extent that any area with sufficient aerial protection may feel reasonably safe from invasion.

In both the Coral Sea and the Midway battles, the Japanese and Americans followed the same attacking tactics, sending in first the dive bombers and torpedo planes against the aircraft carriers, the most important target.

The vital job in such action is to knock out the carriers. The Americans did this in both battles. Dive bombers and torpedo planes went in so close they couldn't miss.

If the Midway battle had gone the other way and the Japanese had sunk our carriers and knocked out Midway, the Hawaiian Islands probably would be fighting an invasion today.

When the United States goes on the offensive and starts moving overseas against the Japanese, we will face a problem similar to that which confronted the Japanese at Midway—to knock out the enemy airforce.

The Midway battle definitely eased the pressure against this area and probably against all the southern and western Pacific.

U. S. Victory Hailed; China Crisis Acute

The fruits of the great American naval victory at Midway began to take shape today.

In Washington, informed quarters declared the triumph was so complete as almost to eliminate the possibility that the enemy would risk venturing again into Pacific zones where he would be a target for land-based American aircraft.

In Pearl Harbor, the feeling prevailed that the Japanese defeat had removed any threat of invasion against the United States mainland, at least for the predictable future.

Other developments in the far Pacific theater:

China war front—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese armies suffered another reverse with the acknowledged fall of Chuhsien, strategic rail center in western Chekiang province, and Japanese troops were now reported striking into neighboring Kiangsi province on a 30-mile front.

The situation appeared to be growing more acute for the Chinese in several sectors, although the Chinese command announced the recapture of Iwu, on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, about halfway between Chuhsien and Hangchow.

A Tokyo broadcast said Japanese troops had driven from western Chekiang province into Kiangsi after capturing two western Chekiang cities, Changshan and Kiangshan.

Other Japanese columns striking down into Kiangsi province from the north were said to have captured the walled city of Nancheng, 95 miles southeast of Nanchang.

Chinese dispatches said American "Flying Tiger" airmen had scored another spectacular victory over Japanese fliers, shooting down nine out of 18 Japanese planes without loss to themselves in a battle over Kweilin, capital of Kwangsi province.

salary at $3,540 a year, the amount regularly paid the prosecutor. County commissioners approved the allowance.

Lutz said O'Donnell also will assume his private law practice during the prosecutor's absence. Miss Alice Meeting will remain as secretary in the prosecutor's office and Charles H. Freehafer is to continue as regular assistant prosecutor.

The prosecutor said he would request a furlough if he is accepted by the army June 20, and will return to assist with the county grand jury session set for the week of June 22. The new army regulations permit an inductee to receive a two-week stay of induction to put his business affairs in order.

In a statement to The News-Journal, he voiced appreciation for the support he has received from the city and county courts, the police, and the county government units.

"It has been a privilege and honor to serve the people of Richland county as the prosecuting attorney, but regardless of the position, it is an honor as well as a privilege, to serve the government in the present crisis," Lutz said.

lican, although the common pleas judge is elected on a non-partisan ballot.

Fred Bricker, former member of the county board of elections, submitted his petitions for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner. Already in the field were Commissioner C. L. Mitchell and former Sheriff E. P. Long.

Only one candidate who has announced for a county office had not filed before noon today. He is Alden Heath, expected to be the G. O. P. candidate for county auditor. Election board officials, however, saw a chance that

"last-minute candidates" may file late this afternoon and this evening.

Twenty-five candidates for state offices—13 Democrats and 12 Republicans—had filed at noon today. Other announcements were expected before the books close tonight.

Four candidates have filed for governor on the Democratic ticket and two others were expected to enter the race. Already in are State Auditor Joseph Ferguson, Clarence H. Knisley, and John McSweeney, and Frank Dye, Columbus attorney. Walter F. Heer, Franklin county Democratic chairman, may file.

Gov. John W. Bricker had no opposition at noon today, although M. Herbert Hoover of Akron has announced he will file. He lacked a sufficient number of petition signers at noon.

Secretary of State John E. Sweeney, of Cleveland, became the last of the incumbent state officials to file with his office for renomination to their present offices when he entered petitions bearing about 16,000 signatures from 83 counties. So far he is unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

If he remains so, he will face in the November elections one of three Democrats who have filed for their party's nomination—Edward J. Hummel, of Cincinnati; Dale Stump, of Columbus, or A. R. Thomas, of Cleveland.

No political aspirant as yet has been intrepid enough to enter the race against Republican Congressman-at-large George H. Bender or Democratic Congressman-at-large Stephen M. Young, both of Cleveland Heights. Hence they seem assured of meeting each other this November in a torrid battle for the one such congressional seat now allowed Ohio under the reapportionment which followed the 1940 census.

Formerly there were two such seats, and each captured one of them. Now they will do battle to eliminate each other, presenting the only contest in the state in which an incumbent is bound to lose.

Other incumbents who already have filed are Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, of Columbus; State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, of Akron; Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, of Cleveland Heights, and Supreme Court Judges Roy H. Williams of Sandusky, and Edward C. Turner, Columbus.

All are Republicans and all except Judge Williams are unopposed so far for their party's nomination. Judge Williams, seeking re-nomination for a term beginning next Jan. 1, is opposed for his party's nomination by Guy B. Findley, of Elyria, while on the Democratic side William C. Dixon of Cleveland is unopposed.

For the term beginning next Jan. 2, for which Judge Turner seeks re-nomination, Willis W. Metcalf of Bexley, Columbus suburb, is the only Democratic candidate.

On the Democratic side of the ledger, Robert S Cox of Millersburg and R. M. Winegardner of Washington C. H., will contest for the nomination for lieutenant governor; Harry V. Armstrong of LaRue and John C. Fowler of Columbus for treasurer, and Herbert S. Duffy of Columbus and William J. Hart of Cleveland for attorney general.

DISCUSS TRIPLE DRIVE ON AXIS

Allied Capitals Speculate on Second Front, Thrusts at Japs From Russia.

Japanese attack on the Aleutians (off Alaska) was a direct threat to Soviet Kamchatka and Siberia. Can Russia stand aside and watch the wildfire spread to her very gates? She must do something and do it quickly . . . "

Similarly, the China Times urged Russia to "make the timely decision to help the Allies in the Pacific by going to war against Japan."

Talk of a Russo-Japanese war was rife also at Pearl Harbor, where informed quarters suggested that the Japanese thrusts at Midway and Alaska were the prelude to an attack on Russia.

With the Allies united as never before—first by the new 20-year mutual assistance pact between Britain and Russia, second by a new Washington-Moscow accord wiping the dollar sign off United States aid to Russia—the question of opening a second front in Europe this year brought various reactions.

In Washington, few congress members believed that the White House announcement of agreement on the "urgent task" of creating a new front portended any immediate attempt to land allied troops in Europe.

London, Washington and Moscow were all agreed on the "urgency" of the matter, but officials shied at a direct interpretation of the rather ambiguously worded statement.

Section of the British press which long have been clamoring for direct action against Germany hailed the accord with high enthusiasm. Typified by the London Daily Express' comment:

"This is Hitler's worst day."

At all events, London military observers declared Hitler's anxiety was betrayed by two factors:

1. Frenzied German efforts to secure the channel coast against invasion.

2. Indications that Hitler was massing his armies for an all-out attempt to smash Russia before the Allies can establish a second front.

British headquarters said the tank battle centered around Harmat, midway between Tobruk and Bir Hacheim, and indicated the outcome was still uncertain.

The Italians and Germans declared 1,000 Free French and British imperial troops were killed and more than 2,000 captured at Bir Hacheim, which fell early yesterday.

The Italian command acknowledged that RAF bombers pounded the Italian naval base at Taranto for the fourth night in a row. In the first three attacks, 41 persons were listed as killed.

DESCRIBES HOW U. S. AIRCRAFT CARRIER SANK

Reporter Aboard 30-000-Ton Lexington Says Blasts Sent Ship Down.

fire to launch bombs and torpedoes.

At least two torpedoes hit the ship—well-armored because it had originally been designed as a battle cruiser—and at least two bombs found their mark.

Fires broke out but the crew, battling heroically, managed to put them out and clear the flight deck of debris. The Lexington's planes returned to the ship.

Several hours later, while the wounded carrier was steaming out of apparent danger, her speed reduced from 33¼ to 20 knots, there was a sudden explosion between decks. Fires broke out in many places.

At first it was thought a delayed action bomb had gone off but it was later established that gasoline vapors from leaking lines had exploded. The crew tried to extinguish the blazes but their fire-fighting equipment had been damaged. For five hours they fought, but finally the ship was blazing almost from stem to stern.

American destroyers pulled alongside and tried to fight the fires with their own pumps and hoses. As the fires gained headway, the carrier's wounded were removed to the destroyers. Then, her pumps gone, came the command, "abandon ship."

True to sea tradition, the carrier's commander, Capt F. S. Sherman, was the last to leave. As he was sliding down ropes to the water's edge a tremendous blast occurred within the stricken ship. The flames had reached the torpedo lockers.

While he was pulling away, another big explosion ripped it apart internally. A matter of minutes later it had disappeared.

The Lexington's career had ended, the only American aircraft destroyed thus far in this war.

It carried a complement of 1,899 officers and men, including flying personnel, at the time it was commissioned and 80 to 90 planes. The Lexington and its sister ship, the Saratoga were the biggest carriers in our fleet, but also the oldest. More modern carriers of much smaller tonnage can carry as many aircraft. As warships go, the Lexington was approaching obsolescence.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1942.

A return of whiskers is foreseen for "any day now"—every morning, for that matter.

It now appears that Germany's "good humor" month was observed not a bit too soon for Cologne co-operation.

Non-enforcement of anti-gambling laws is excused by the explanation, "The people want it"—and if that's true the lawmakers should be told.

Britain and Russia's 20-Year Pact

ANNOUNCEMENT of a 20-year "mutual assistance treaty" between Great Britain and Russia, while in accord with war-time policies of the United Nations, is an encouraging indication that basic common interests are to be carried into the post-war period, to the exclusion of minor differences.

If these two great European powers are thus brought into accord along lines of the unselfish principles expounded in the Atlantic charter, "to preserve peace and resist aggression in the post-war period," much can be accomplished in removing the causes of past and present war on that continent.

And further, if the ideas and ideals expressed in the Atlantic charter can be given world-wide application, the prospects of establishing and maintaining world peace will be greatly enhanced.

There is nothing particularly new in the agreement by the United States, Great Britain and Russia on the urgency of creating a second front in Europe as quickly as militarily practicable.

This has been understood as essential to final victory over the Axis powers and has been considered merely a matter of awaiting the time when the blow could be most effectively struck.

Movement for the past several months has been in that direction and the importance given yesterday's announcement from Washington is being construed in some quarters as meaning that second front action is near.

While Japan seems to have been omitted from recognition in conferences devoted to the war situation in Europe this omission can be taken to mean no more than that defeat of Hitlerism in Europe has been decided upon as the immediate big objective, with a feeling of confidence that the situation in the Far East can be kept sufficiently well in hand to be disposed of when the time arrives for concentration on that sector.

Merited Pay Raise for Service Men

AGREEMENT by house and senate on $50 a month as minimum pay for all men in the United States armed forces will probably be quite generally approved, and this, after all, will constitute only a small percentage of the total costs of war.

When it is remembered that the $50 a month is merely a basic rate, from which speedy progress is made to higher pay, with additional compensation to be provided for comfortable maintenance of dependents, the new rate of pay seems much more representative of the attitude of America toward its soldiers, sailors and marines than does the $21 a month now in effect.

While the new pay rate will make United States fighting men the highest paid in the world it appears that the money compensation for their services will still be small, as compared with future benefits to themselves and to their country which will result from their present sacrifices—however great may be the hardships they are called upon to undergo.

Even casual knowledge of conditions in Europe under Nazi rule, and in the Far East where Japanese barbarism is now holding sway in many sections, gives an idea of what some of the men in this nation's armed forces may be called upon to face before the war is over, and of how much dependence must be placed in them to save our own country from such atrocities.

This extra money, small as it may seem to recipients of high wages in war industries, will supply some of the needs of service men in training, and afterward when they have a little leisure for badly needed recreation. Also, for some of them, it will probably offer opportunity to save a little money for later use during a period of rehabilitation.

Increasing Need for Nurses

A YOUNG WOMAN must have a strong physique, a poised mentality, a willingness to do anything necessary and take whatever comes, to make a good army nurse. It takes training, too; but given the first qualifications, hospital discipline will provide the others.

It takes high qualifications to make a good soldier, too, but the discipline of the army camp turns basic abilities into strong powers, ready to use.

Many young women, with other careers in mind as first or second choices, will be going into nursing this year and next. They will find that in the long run they will lose nothing. Nursing experience and training will deepen and strengthen whatever powers they had to start with. After the war, they can enter the postponed careers and make a success of them, just as the boys will do. They will be bigger and more adequate people, starting in their chosen fields, than if they had entered those fields a few years before.

If they choose to remain in nursing, they will have a competence over and above that of the girls who have known that field only in easier times. As wives and mothers, they will find their duties easier.

The need at present is very great. Graduates of schools and colleges this June should consider it seriously.

Safe Form of Thrift

SALES of War Savings Bonds for the month of May were $634,356,000, nicely surpassing the $600,000,000 quota. Continental U. S. A. fell a little behind two important territorial outposts. Hawaii bought more than six times its quota, and Alaska two and one-half times. Utah did the best among the states, with 171 per cent.

This is only a start on the real job. If the war is to cost $200,000,000,000, which is what the government is figuring on, people have hardly begun buying. It is the best and safest form of thrift, and a neat combination of profit and patriotism.

Discovery that 433,000 draft eligibles have been turned down for illiteracy gives assurance of a sizeable nucleus of supporters of crack-pot ideas in the post-war period.

HIDING IT UNDER THE RUG!

War Produces Business Gambles

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—It isn't only the military and political leaders who have to make decisions involving vital gambles on what may or may not happen. Industry is up against the same thing, and even the little business man has to make up his mind on courses of action which may lead to losses if things break one way, or save his shirt if they break the other.

Take the matter of a big office building in Washington. This building has three furnaces, which have burned oil to supply heat and hot water ever since the building was constructed. Now the building management is ordered to cut down its consumption of oil by 50 per cent (the first order was for only a 25 per cent reduction).

Now it would be comparatively simple for the management to let the building be cold next winter, and tell the tenants it was sorry, but a temperature of 55 degrees, or whatever should prove to be possible, was the best it could do.

ACTUALLY the building management COULD do precisely that, for the tenants would not be able to find other quarters, Washington being so crowded. But naturally the management is scratching around, trying to find some way to soften the blow. It figures it can save only 12 to 15 per cent at the maximum, without producing hardship.

So now it is considering putting in coal stokers, IF it can get the stokers—for at least one and possibly two of the boilers. Being a downtown office building it cannot pile up a stock of coal, as can the regular householder with a cellar. Its cellars are much occupied. So there is a question whether to buy coal and dump it on a lot somewhere in the suburbs, or to take the chance of being able to get coal during the winter.

There is a decided risk both ways, and no one can tell which is the greater. This depends on events which are as unpredictable as the outcome of a battle.

Of course every dollar invested in the stoker will be a dead loss if events should prove that sufficient oil can be delivered to Washington. For instance there has been considerable optimism here for the last few weeks that Germany might be knocked out of the war this December. Should that happy culmination be achieved the investment in the stoker would be a dead loss, and there would be the loss involved in moving the coal bought, plus the storage charges meanwhile! The point here is that while the knocking out of Germany would not solve the problem of tires, it would relieve the oil and gasoline situation.

THIS problem will become acute only IF the building management finds it can obtain a stoker. Right now the manufacturers think they can deliver them. But it is by no means certain that other developments will not occur which will prevent the use of metal for such purposes.

So much detail is given about this one case because the writer knows all the facts involved first hand. But there is not a business man in the country who does not have to make decisions which loom large in the matter of whether he winds up next year in the black or red.

Your Bottleneck

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

CONTRACTORS moaning . . . defense workers raving . . . generals and admirals tearing their hair. All because production isn't going fast enough. There's a "bottleneck" somewhere. A strike in some shipyard . . . squabbles about wages and hours . . . a hopeless tangle over transportation.

Bottlenecks. That phrase seems new to a lot of us, but it isn't. It's one of the oldest in our language—and responsible for nine-tenths of the misery and cussedness in human nature.

Bottlenecks, they don't merely slow up production. They slow up progress, human happiness and pride—all those things which make life worth living.

WE ALL HAVE THEM. THERE'S SOME BOTTLENECK IN EVERY LIFE. . . . SOME TRAIT OR TENDENCY WHICH HOLDS US BACK, BLOCKS THE WAY TOWARD THE WIDER HORIZON.

Often it's fear. Fear that began when we were children, implanted, perhaps, by unwise parents or crippling environment. Fear that becomes a halting inferiority complex, a shackling self-consciousness.

Sometimes it's grief. That's even more insidious than fear. We're sane enough to be ashamed of fear but we're apt to think that prolonged grief is a sacred and admirable thing. Actually it's one of the most malignant forms of selfishness. You have no more right to spend your life coddling some old sorrow than you would to wallow in bathtub gin.

Sometimes it's vanity . . . plain old-fashioned case of swelled head which we call sensitiveness. Or stubbornness, or peevish determination to have our own way. But whatever it is, it's a bottleneck against a free and happy life.

And the worst of it is, we seldom know what it's all about. We know something's wrong but we blame it on our parents or the other fellow's cussedness or on social greed or fate . . . on anyone or anything except ourselves.

As a matter of fact, no one is responsible for the bottleneck in our lives but Exhibit A. Yes, we may have had raw deals when we were youngsters, we may have known scarcity and injustice, shock and tragedy, but none of these need be bottlenecks unless we permit them to be. Life will always go on, if we will let it go on. There is no wound that will not heal, if we are willing for it to be healed. But there's the trouble:

WE DON'T ALWAYS WANT OUR WOUNDS TO BE HEALED. THEY'RE SUCH A CONVENIENT ALIBI, SUCH A SWELL SPOTLIGHT IF WE CAN'T ATTRACT AN AUDIENCE IN ANY OTHER WAY. AND SO, UNCONSCIOUSLY, OR EVEN DEFIANTLY, WE CLING TO THEM. MAKE MARTYRS OF OURSELVES. THEN WONDER WHY WE "NEVER HAVE ANY LUCK."

What's YOUR bottleneck?

Timely Editorial

Predicted by Franklin.

Benjamin Franklin would be interested by the current announcement that 1,000 air-raid shelters are to be constructed in Philadelphia for protection of the people against forays by enemy bombers. Franklin was in France on that day nearly two centuries ago when a first successful balloon ascension was made for the king's pleasure. No other witnesses of the history-making event were more greatly impressed than this American. He prophesied the use of aircraft in future wars.

Not even Franklin, wise as he was, could foresee the time when air power would become the determining factor in wars, when destruction would be rained from the air upon cities, death upon civilians. The time is upon us and Ben Franklin's town is among the first of our great cities to order provision for protection of the people against air raiders.

Other cities in raiding distance from our coasts should not be slow in making like protective provision. Our enemies, granted a first opportunity, will not hesitate to strike from the air.—Dallas News.

Midway Battle Stirs Demand for Independent Control of Air Corps

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—In army-navy circles, the battle of Midway island was considered important not only as a turning point in the war, but as a new milestone in the demand for a separate, independent U. S. air force, not chained down by the battleship prejudices of the admirals.

There are two chief reasons for this renewed demand for a separate air corps at this time:

1. The battle of Midway, and in fact all major U. S. victories so far, have been won primarily by the Army Air Corps. The navy has been in command, issued the communiques, and received most of the credit. But at Midway and the Coral sea, land based army planes turned the tide of victory.
2. Army airmen claim that despite the vital importance of bombing planes, the battleship still gets priority in materials over bombers.

Actually, construction of both bombers and battleships get top priority ratings. But when it comes to some of the materials going into bombers, it is another story. Army airmen say that certain materials for bombers get only a No. 4 rating, whereas all materials for battleships are rushed through at top speed. Yet most of the battleships now building will not be finished for two or three years; while bombers can be finished in a few weeks, and they can be dropping bombs on Germany a few days later.

This question, many military strategists feel, is one of the most fundamental faced by U. S. forces, and represents the difference between winning the war in 1942 with bombers, or winning it in 1944 with battleships.

And the air corps, they are convinced, cannot function if it is chained down to battleships.

Air Corps Met Japs.

TO GET a clear picture of the situation it is necessary to study the strategy of the battle of Midway island. Admiral King, long one of the most air-minded admirals in the navy, gave the up-off to what happened when he said that it was not wise for the U. S. Navy to follow the Jap fleet to mop up.

"They still have a lot of shore-based air power," he explained, "as they found we had in the Coral sea and at Midway."

This was another way of saying that U. S. battleships could not go too close to Japan's Marshall islands, with their land air bases, because warships cannot stand up under concentrated airplane attack.

It was also another way of saying that before the Jap fleet even got to Midway island it was met by a reception committee largely of U. S. air corps bombers which made it too uncomfortable to advance further. "Shore-based air power" is not the navy, but the army; plus, in this case, a small contingent of marine corps bombers.

Thus, reading between the lines of Admiral King's statement, it is safe speculation to piece together this picture of what happened at Midway island.

The Japanese were advancing with what Admiral King described as "the bulk" of their fleet. This was estimated at eight modern battleships and six airplane carriers, which left them only about six other battleships and one other carrier to guard their far-flung battle lines to Singapore and India. In other words, the Japs were putting most of their eggs in one basket and making a desperate stab at eventual invasion of the U. S. A.

Planes Rushed to Midway.

CALCULATING our opposition to this huge armada, the Japs must have estimated that considering our losses at Pearl Harbor and our necessity of protecting the Atlantic, we could not match their battleship strength in the Pacific. They had photographs of the damage done at Pearl Harbor, and they knew we had used no battleships in the battles of the South Pacific. So probably they were able to make a fairly accurate estimate of what we could muster around Midway. And the tremendous size of their own force shows they did not want to take chances.

However, the Japs were not able to calculate that we would get wind of their movements in advance, and that the army would concentrate so many of its big bombers on Midway island—hungry for the Jap attack.

And reading between the lines of the navy's statements, it is safe speculation that our air fleet, chiefly army bombers, met the Jap ships 500 miles off Midway and never let them come within range of our battleships' big guns; also that the only U. S. naval vessels which really got into action were our submarines. (The Japs presumably scored their hits against us with airplanes or subs.)

Admirals Rule Air.

INDISPUTABLE fact, however, is that no navy today can go near a heavy concentration of land-based planes. The British super-dreadnaughts Prince of Wales and Repulse were not able to do it. The Jap battleship Haruna was not able to do it when we still had some air strength in the Philippines. And the powerful British fleet today is not able to go near Nazi air bases on the coast of Europe.

Yet today, the air corps around Midway is under Admiral Nimitz; the air corps around the Coral sea is under Admiral Leary; and the air corps around the Caribbean approaches to the Panama canal is under Admiral Hoover—none of whom ever has been trained in aviation.

Political-Go-Round.

THIS is Mrs. Barclay Harding Warburton's idea of the way to further national unity: Addressing a meeting of the Pennsylvania state Republican committee, the wealthy, former national committeewoman shrilled: "We've got three enemies to defeat—the Japs, the Germans and the Democrats." . . . So heavy has been the demand for copies of an article published by the Great Falls, Mont., News giving a detailed record of Senator Burt Wheeler's isolationist opposition that the newspaper has had to reprint it three times. . . . Representative Fred A. Hartley, New Jersey Old Guarder, is having a tough fight for re-election. The AFL and CIO have joined forces to beat him, and in a joint letter have called on the Essex county GOP chairman to repudiate Hartley. . . . Representative Dan Reed, upstate New York, is another Republican who is in trouble because of his isolationism. Opposition Republicans in his district are supporting Leon F. Roberts, able young former mayor of Jamestown, against Reed.

It's the basic language of Africa. . . . There may be thousands of tribal tongues, but, underneath, they all speak Swahili. . . . Curiously, it's very simple. It hasn't any roots It doesn't stem from Latin or Greek. . . . The words pronounce just as they look. . . . It's purely a case of memorizing them. . . . A very important word is "nitaka," which means "I want." . . . With that one word, you can point to water, food, anything and be understood. . . . If you ever saw a movie of the African jungle you'll remember "Bwana," which means Mr., or Sir. . . . "Hali Gani" is "How do you do?" . . . "Cahawa" is coffee. . . . On election day, the Coolidge-Dawes ticket swept the country carrying every state north of Mason and Dixon line with the exception of Wisconsin.

A Farmer's Diary

Pheasant Brood

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

OUR little pheasant hatched her brood. It must have happened yesterday, for when I came home from the village, in my car, I saw her crossing the road, beside the bridge. Her feathers were wildly ruffled, as I approached, and she stepped reluctantly toward my approaching car, standing high on her short legs, as though to flag me down.

I stopped not more than 10 feet from her, and got out. Ten downy newly hatched pheasants, brown, with darker stripes across the back, went toddling after her. Their mother concealed herself in the thick grassy edge of the road and stood there taut, with alert, restless eyes and drooping wing feathers, watching.

Her protective instinct almost forced her to fly against me when I stood in the very midst of her precious family, but when I made no move to touch the tiny things, she kept to her quiet nook of grass.

A neighbor, from the village, came by from the opposite direction. He smiled when he saw what I was trying to do, and got out of his car to help. Together we shooed the pheasant brood north toward the nest.

He looked very funny flopping his arms about—and he smiled when he looked at me. When the road was clear again, he went on. I stayed to see how the wild mother would get her flock back together.

First I heard a low cluck. Five little balls of fluff moved into the open along the grass and scuttled in the direction of the sound. She clucked several times, to keep them coming. Soon through the thin lines of lower stems, I could make her out, settled in hovering pose. Beneath the loose wings, numerous tiny legs showed—the bodies completely lost in the mother bird's soft breast feathers.

The sheltering mother gave a sweet, wild, contented note. An answering murmur of sleepy infant voices responded.

I was happy when I stepped into my car again, to know this lovely little family of the fields was completely reunited.

A Man's Woman + + +

By Jane Dixon

CHAPTER IV

"I thought you'd surrender," he gloated, "when I threatened force."

"You'd better get busy with your burned matches," Kay countered. "You have the garden path down to the pasture to clean up before lunch. Stones are loose, grass has grown between and the edges need plenty of trimming."

"Who, me?" Ronnie howled. "With my soft white hands?"

A telephone bell rang inside the house, the extension Elsa had insisted having in her room. This room was at the front of the house. Windows were open directly above the veranda. Kay heard Cora Kenyon's querulous response to the ring.

"Yes, this is Mrs. Kenyon. Yes, it's Mrs. Asa Kenyon. Who wants to know? Mr. Kahler?"

Kay thought, the grocer! What now? If only Aunt Cora would lower her voice!

"You need your money? Well," she said indignantly, "that's your business, not mine. Now you listen to me. You've sent us a lot of cheap stuff lately . . . the chickens yesterday were worse than old crows. We'll settle that bill when we get good and ready, not before . . . What's that? You won't send another order 'till you're paid? Why you — you — how dare you talk like that to a Kenyon? Don't you call up this house again, don't you dare. I'll—"

Kay pleaded silently for Aunt Cora to lower her voice.

Inexorably the tirade went on: "I'll get the law on you. I'll see you're drummed out o' town. You're nothing but a common store-keeper, calling your betters up and dunning them! I'll tell my husband about this. He'll fix you."

* * *

The receiver was slammed on the hook. There was a murmur of voices . . . Elsa and her mother, the older woman urgent, the younger feverish. Had Ronnie heard? But of course He couldn't help hearing. Aunt Cora's voice, always sharp and penetrating had been raised to an angry shout. What must he think? Oh well—what difference? Everyone in Somerset knew. The Kenyons were broke. The Kenyons were in debt. The Kenyons were on the rocks.

Ronnie's pretense of busying himself with his porch work did not deceive Kay. She felt the red mounting from her throat, flooding her cheeks . . . the hurt pride of youth.

Ronnie ceased his too strenuous operations. He leaned across the rickety railing, surveyed the sky as though it were brand new.

"Hey Red," he said, "look at this day! Who wants to work on a day like this? Let's take a powder on work. Let's play hookey. A spin to the Country Club—a spot o' tennis. What say?"

"I say yes." Kay whisked off her apron. Thank goodness she had put on her fresh green chambray dress this morning.

They drove away in Ronnie's sports roadster as Elsa appeared in the front doorway, cool and white and shining, save for her face. As the car slid down the weedy drive Elsa's face became a grey mask of yearning, and of a darker emotion difficult to define.

While Kay sought to shake off the embarrassment of the morning, to shut out the rasp of Aunt Cora's voice by a particularly stinging game of tennis at the Country Club, the aftermath of Elsa's extravagant party grew steadily worse in the Kenyon house.

The Clarion, Somerset's gift to journalism, carried a flowery account of the buffet supper and informal dance at which Mr. and Mrs. Asa Kenyon entertained for their "beautiful and popular daughter, Elsa, of the younger set." The story was thickly embroidered with adjectives describing the decorations, the supper, the gowns of the girls; an even more ornate paragraph extolled the traditional hospitality of the "old Kenyon place."

Elsa read the story, crumpled the paper into a knot, flung it from her, ran up the worn steps, threw herself on her bed and sobbed.

Shortly after the Clarion appeared on the streets and in places of business, merchants began calling the Kenyon home to inquire about bills long overdue. People who splurged ought to have the decency to pay their debts. Showing off on other folks' money. There was the coal and ice company, the poultry market, two butchers, Franks Department store, the Bon Ton Specialty shop, Frosts Ice Cream parlor, Emma Wagner the dressmaker, the Sunnydale Nurseries (flowers and shrubs), the C. K. Hardware store, the City Pharmacy. These were the most pressing accounts. They had been pressing for some time.

When the story of Elsa's party highlighted the social news in the Clarion, polite pressure ceased. "We want our money. We've been carrying you long enough. Pay at once, or we'll put it in the hands of our attorney."

The Kenyon telephone kept up an unholy clamor. Cora raged. Ellen wrung her hands. Elsa locked her door and refused admittance even to her mother. Asa Kenyon could not be found. A note on his office door said, "Back in an Hour" but five hours passed without the promise of being fulfilled.

At twelve, noon, on this grim day, Kay, sprawled in a deck chair on the club house sun deck, was trying to think things through.

What a sorry mess it all was!

She should not be here, idling, swinging a tennis racket, racing back and forth and across. She should be putting energy into something concrete, something that yielded a return for expenditure. Ronnie was in the showers, freshening up after his strenuous exercise. She had left him to play another set with the club "pro" while he took a dip in the pool. Such waste! Such squandering of time! Such squandering of energy! Taking life with tongue in cheek. Evading responsibilities. Munching privileges as though they were bon bons. Disgusting. Devilish!

"Snap out of it Red," Ronnie trotted toward Kay, across the sun deck. He was lithe and brown. He exuded well-being, high spirit, the soap and water lotion odor of the healthy male who goes in for good grooming. "I could lay my finger in that frown between your eyes.

"I . . . I was seeing gnomes," Kay said.

"Don't believe in 'em" Ronnie sat on the footrest of Kay's deck chair.

"You would if you were in my place."

"No I wouldn't either. Gnomes are a rummy lot. Little fellows with pitchforks."

"My gnomes aren't imaginary. They're alive and they make horrible faces.

"I know how to lay that gang low . . . a wee nip and a chef's plate. Those aren't gnomes you're seeing lady; those are pangs of hunger making spots in front of your eyes."

"Maybe." Kay forced a smile. She must rouse herself. Ronnie knew. He must not think she was asking for sympathy, for pity. She must carry on along the blind path until . . .

"Quick." Ronnie took Kay's hands, pulled her to her feet. "Let's duck. Tally's just come aboard. We can make it down the starboard side. She's on the port."

At a table on the terrace, with the prompting of Ronnie's inexhaustible capacity for frolic, Kay managed to recapture something of her good humor.

"A spot of what it takes for a buck-up?" Ronnie asked.

Kay laughed. Pretty mirthless, but still a laugh

"Thanks," she said. "Make mine a tall glass filled with ice cubes, lemon juice and fizz water. The taller the better. A bucket will do, in case they're short of glasses."

"Good girl. I'll take the same with a jigger of rum added. Sure you wouldn't like a jigger of rum? Old Doc Farnsworth recommends it highly"

"No thanks. I like my lemon straight. Ron, don't look now, but Tally is bearing down on us. Will you have to ask her for lunch?"

"What?" Ronnie's jaw tightened. "Feed that she-wolf? The only time I ask Tally Holmes to lunch with me, pal, will be when I have my cyanide with me and a chance to sprinkle it lightly over her food while nobody's looking."

* * *

Tally made a show of not seeing the two at the table until she was fairly upon them. Then she stopped, struck a pose, and called, "Greetings! Fancy seeing you here. Is it a two-some, or do I get in?"

"For you, Miss Fit," Ronnie said, "It's a two-some."

Tally sniffed, "Don't be rude, little man. I'm lunching with Eunice and a fascinating stranger. I just wanted to hear what you would say."

"And now you've heard, you'll be running along?"

"Yes indeed. But don't feel so badly about it. Kay, you're looking fresh as—fresh. After that scuffle in the garden last night too. How do you do it? I'm worn to a nub."

Kay said, "scuffle in the garden . . . oh, that! I always feel fit after I've slain a few prowlers."

"Yes Tally my love, and let that be a lesson to you," Ronnie said darkly.

"Oh there's Eunice with the fascinating stranger," Tally sung out, waving a hand at two figures which appeared at the far end of the terrace. "I know it will break your hearts to have me leave you, but I'll be back, never fear."

Ronnie muttered, "I wonder why someone didn't strangle her at birth. It would have been a boon."

"Tally isn't so bad, really," Kay said. "It's just that she has a boundless curiosity about life; she has nothing to do, so she escapes boredom by minding other people's business."

"A fine state of affairs. If she has so darn much pep, why doesn't she find herself a job? Why even I, playboy that I am, put in ten or twelve hours a week on the grind. Dad's business of course, but don't think that makes it easy for me."

At that moment a vagrant breeze caught up a part of the Clarion a reader had left on the terrace, and swirled it toward Ronnie's table. It caught Kay on the arm, clung tenaciously. She pulled it away, then glanced at it. Her eyes widened. A single paragraph stood out in bold type.

"Young woman with personality, neat appearance, hostess and clerk, Lord's Sweet Shop. Chance for right person to learn candy and tea room business. Apply owner, 609 Center street."

Kay said, "Ronnie, there's something I must do. Would you mind driving me downtown, right away?"

Ronnie protested. "Maybe you've forgotten Red, food is indicated. We haven't eaten for days."

"Lunch can wait. Please Ron, it's terribly important. If you can't drive me in, I'll have to find some way. Ron, will you"

The urgency of Kay's plea had its effect.

"Why of course, Lady," he said, "if you say so. I'll get the car."

"No . . . I mean . . . I'll go with you." Kay rose. She was still holding the paper.

On the way out they passed close to the table at which Eunice, Tally and a strange man were lunching. Inadvertently Kay glanced toward the trio. Her eyes caught those of the strange man, eyes so blue they not only caught, but held her. The man was asking her—or was he asking himself? a question.

Eagerness, which had made the drive from the Country Club to town seem all too long to Kay, collapsed like a punctured balloon as the door of Lord's Sweet shop swung to behind her.

There had been trouble getting rid of Ronnie. He insisted on squiring Kay into the shop for whatever it was she wanted, "up to and including a five-pound box of chocolates."

"But I don't want chocolates, at least not now," she insisted. "It's . . . I mean . . . I have to see Mr. Lord on business."

He looked at her sharply. It occurred to Kay that he might be wondering whether if her haste, the abruptness of her decision, might have something to do with the telephone conversation of the morning—Aunt Cora fighting off insistent collectors.

She could not think how to ally his suspicion without revealing her real purpose, so she remained silent.

A young woman behind the counter was primping in the glass as Kay approached. She took her time about turning to learn the needs of the customer. She was a sallow girl, thin and angular. All her angles seemed to be awry, giving her an awkward, stilted air. Her hair was drab and limp and her mouth was an inverted curve with the points turned downward. She was Bessie Munsell. Kay had known her from the time they entered primary grade school.

Bessie had been a problem child until she turned the corner to young womanhood. She lived with a slatternly mother, a rollicking father and a horde of younger sisters and brothers "down by the lumber yard." She had a keen mind which gave her scholastic standing and a superiority complex. Her A-plus as a student did not admit her to the jealously guarded circle of Somerset's "younger set." One was born to that circle and never crashed it except by reason of outstanding wealth or outstanding position. Thus, physically, and by accident of birth, she was barred from those prerequisites for which her heart hungered. She hid her hurt behind a hard shell of indifference and a revolt which had earned her the reputation of being "a little bit wild."

"Yes?" she said, turning from the mirror to address Kay, "Something I can do for you?" She gave no sign of recognition.

Kay said, "Hello Bessie. Is Mr. Lord in?" She was friendly and casual.

"I'll inquire," Bessie said. "What is it you want to see him about?"

"About this." Kay thrust forward the paper. On the drive in, she had managed to ring the want ad with a pencil without Ronnie's noticing it.

Bessie gave her an up and down survey.

"You have an applicant?" she asked, her sallow cheeks flushing.

"I am the applicant," Kay said.

"Oh, in that case—" Bessie's eyes glittered. Figuratively, she licked her lips. "I'll tell him Miss Kenyon is here, looking for a job."

"Thanks." Kay turned and began inspecting the candies in the show case. The spectacle of Bessie Munsell, triumphant, shook her resolve.

Heber Lord, of Lord's Sweet shop was a pudgy man with a red face, a bull-frog voice and a brusque manner that served as a screen to the softness of his heart.

"Aft'noon, Miss Kenyon," he said from behind his battered oak roll-top desk. "Have a chair. What's this I hear about you wanting to work in the Sweet Shop?"

Kay felt the pretense under which she had been living fall away from her. She felt bright and shining.

"I need to earn money, Mr. Lord," she said. "I need to work."

"I don't get it." Heber Lord was puzzled. "This is a job here in the Sweet Shop. No fancy work. You're a Kenyon. The Kenyons always have been—well, I guess you know what I mean."

"I know what you mean. The Kenyons have been—but Mr. Lord this is now."

"Well . . . I've heard rumors."

"They aren't rumors, Mr. Lord. They're facts. That is why I'm here."

Lord scratched his head, filled the bowl of his pipe, lit it slowly.

"I like your spirit," he said. 'You want work. Sure it isn't just one of the fancies young people get these days? Something different, that's what they want. Riding on a rocking horse. Here today, gone tomorrow. Sure it isn't just something to do beside dance and play games and have a heck of a time no matter what?"

Kay rose from her chair. She came close to the roll-top desk. She faced Heber Lord. Her shoulders were straight.

"I'm a Kenyon," she said, "and that seems to place a penalty on me. My father was one of the finest men who ever lived in this community. My mother still is one of the finest women in this community. We had money, property. We've lost it. I'm young and strong. I have a fair education—not college, but average. I want to work. I read in the Clarion that you were asking for help. I should like the opportunity of working for you. I believe I can. Maybe it is my youth and my hope speaking, but won't you give both of them a trial?"

Heber Lord leaned back in his revolving chair.

"I was prepared to bark at you, Miss Kenyon," he said. "I thought you were just another one of those restless ones from the big houses trying to get away from too much of everything. I see I was wrong. You mean business. So do I. I can help you and maybe you can help me. I'm not a big-house man, but I'm an honest man. I can feel in my bones that you are honest too; so I hire you. Seven dollars a week. A dollar a day. Can you take that, Miss Kenyon?"

OFF FOR NAVY

Brothers in Contingent on Way To Training Station.

Two brothers, Lewis and Warren Canter of Mansfield R. D. 2 were among the contingent of 12 men enlisted for the navy at the recruiting office in the Mansfield postoffice who left yesterday to start training at the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Lewis is 18, and Warren is 21. The group also included four members of the recent Loudonville high school graduating class—Paul B. Smith, William F. Gorrell, Jack E. Gretsinger and William B. Johnson. Others were:

Warren C. Cline, Loudonville; Ellis C. Dougherty, 146 Harker street and Joseph M. Kumisarek, 802 Grace street, both of Mansfield; Thomas R. McCollough and Stanley C. Greene, both of Butler, and James R. Alexander, Danville.

W. G. Cox, officer in charge of the Mansfield recruiting station, pointed out that recent revision of physical standards means that many men formerly rejected by the navy now may be accepted.

HATRED MARKS NAZI TREATMENT OF GERMAN JEW

All Rights Taken From Race; Members Driven From Homes, Property Confiscated.

(Editor's Note: The status of the Jew under Nazism is described by Louis P. Lochner, chief of the former Associated Press and Wide World Bureau in Berlin, in his ninth of a daily series for The News-Journal since his return from internment in Germany.)

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(By Wide World)

NEW YORK—Because of Adolf Hitler's blind hatred, the Jew is a marked man wherever Nazism holds sway.

The yellow six-pointed star with the German word "Jude" or its Czech or Dutch or other foreign language equivalent points him out as a person who must be avoided.

In Nazi Germany the treatment of the Jew has alternated between broken promises and sadistic cruelty. That the Jew would be removed from public office and possibly also dislodged from cultural positions of influence, once the Nazis came into power, was apparent long before Adolf Hitler took over on Jan. 30, 1933.

Soon the Jew was not only barred from every form of business, but his property was virtually confiscated. Today he is unable even to go into a shop except during certain hours, and then only if there is no sign to the effect that "we don't sell to Jews."

Restaurants are closed to the Jew. If he is found in a movie performance or at a concert or in a theater, the concentration camp is certain for him.

In 1934 the so-called Nurnberg laws defining the status of the Jew were passed by the Reichstag. The laws have long been put in the discard except when it is possible to invoke them to the disfavor of the Jew. The plain fact is that the Jew stands beyond the pale of any law.

Until quite recently, he still had the comforting thought in some cases that the firm in whose services he had grown grey would continue to pay him the pension accorded all faithful workers on reaching the retirement age. But last March 25, Hitler decreed that all firms must report what pensions they still pay Jews. Everyone acquainted with Nazi practices knew instinctively that this foreshadowed the cancellation of pensions for Jews.

The extraordinary powers voted to Hitler by the Reichstag April 26 confirmed this fear.

It now comes to this: any Jew appearing on the streets is marked by a Jew-star band. If he waits for a street car, his Aryan fellow commuters have the right to climb into the vehicle first. Since all cars are crowded in wartime because of the exceedingly limited service, the Jew might as well give up hope of securing transportation; he is not allowed to take a taxi or enter a railway train except with a special permit.

Even in his own home the Jew is not master of his fate. That he may not have any servants goes without saying. But he is not permitted to dispose of any rug or article of furniture without official permission.

The reason is two-fold: many Jews managed, by bartering their last valuables against food, to obtain a little added sustenance. This was a thorn in the flesh of the Nazis. But probably carrying more weight was the fact that, when the wholesale banishments to former Poland began, Nazi party ward heelers were often disappointed, on breaking into the abandoned homes of Jews, by failure to find anything of real value.

The history of these evacuations is one of the darkest blots on the Nazi escutcheon.

Jews were permitted to take with them only what they could carry on their persons and in their hands; and even here the number and kinds of articles were strictly limited.

Children were separated from their parents; often married couples even were torn asunder.

During the dead of the night, when kind-hearted Germans would not see the ghastly processions, the Jews were herded together in some former synagogue (the right of worship was also denied Jews), and from there on into the most primitive third-class cars, without knowing where they were headed.

I know of cases where the unheated train in the dead of winter suddenly stopped on a bleak, cold field in Eastern Poland, with the sharp Russian wind blowing across the wild steppes, and everybody told to get out.

The Jews then had to begin a trek of four or five miles to some little Ghetto village assigned to them. What little they carried in their hands often had to be abandoned because their hands were freezing.

By strong-arm methods like these, gradually almost 60 per cent of Germans professing the Jewish faith were ousted. There are only about 300,000 orthodox Jews left in the Reich.

It must be said for the decent element in Germany that these practices of the Nazi bureaucracy were related in hushed whispers from mouth to mouth in horror and shame, but there was nothing, apparently, that anybody could do in the face of Nazi terrorism.

To sympathize with a Jew meant loss of position and possibly worse.

Y. M. C. A. ARRANGING VARIED SUMMER ACTIVITY PROGRAM

With the summer swimming schedule at the Y. M. C. A., already opened this week Don Cram, Y athletic director announced that plans are now under way for other summer athletic activities.

A softball schedule is being set up with games to be held at a different park playground each morning, Monday through Thursday, from 9 to 12 a. m. The Y workshop, under the supervision of Ed Moran, will open next week from 1 to 4 p. m.

Also planned, according to Cram, is a boys hiking club which will visit points of interest around Mansfield. The club will meet Friday mornings.

Mansfield boys who are interested in any one or all of the activities on the Y summer program are urged by Cram to sign up as soon as possible at Y. M. C. A. offices.

The swimming classes offered to boys which got under way this week are as follows: Empire Steel group, 2 p. m. and Senior high and Cadet classes, 3:30 p. m., Monday; the Midgets, a new class for nine-year-old boys, 1 p. m., Tuesday; Friendly Indians and Pioneers, 2 p. m., and Triangle class, 3 p. m., also Tuesday.

Five-man teams will compete in a trans-Atlantic marathon swim to be held in connection with the swimming classes. One lap of the Y pool will count as five miles on the 3700 mile course.

With registrations for the three summer camp periods at Y. M. C. A. Camp Nelson Dodd beginning to come in already, Louis Jisa, camp committee chairman, urged boys planning to attend either of the first two sessions to sign up early.

Registration deadline for the first 12-day period from June 28 to July 10 has been set for June 22. Although no deadline has been set for second period registration Jisa said that the Mansfield quota was already more than half full. The second session will run from July 12 to 24 and the third camp period extends from July 26 to August 2.

COUNTY RELIEF SPENDING HITS FOUR-YEAR LOW

May Costs $5,545 or $1,598 Less Than April; Expense In City $1,815.

Relief expenditures for Mansfield and Richland county hit a record low during May as war production and the curtailment of WPA projects held costs to $5,545 or $1,598 less than was spent in April.

J. V. Finney, relief director, reported that the May expenditures were the lowest for the past four years. Costs surged as high as $18,000 during that period, according to Finney.

Last year, relief expenditures dropped throughout the early part of the year, hitting a low of $5,910 in August and then moving back up to $8,746 by January, 1942.

Mansfield spent $1,815 for relief during May with an additional $577 for medical services for indigents. Richland county spent $1,205 for relief and $772 for medical services. Administrative and non-administrative costs totaled $1,115.

The county and city caseloads were decreased from 245 to 206 cases, leaving 591 persons on relief in both areas.

During May, seven persons were certified for WPA work, 46 were assigned to projects, 41 were laid off due to private employment or illness. At present, there are 206 persons employed on WPA projects in the county and 25 persons waiting assignment.

Eighty-three families were cared for by workers with the WPA Housekeeping Aid project with 56 employes spending 635 hours in training and 2,639 hours in the homes of indigent persons.

New V-E-P- Alloyed-Oil will make the engine of your car last half again as long as it would with ordinary oil
YES SIR! SCIENTIFIC TESTS, plus over five million miles of road travel, prove it! V. E. P. Alloyed-Oil gives you a 50% bonus in motor life over what you'd get with any straight mineral oil.
IN OTHER WORDS, MISTER, your motor will be in as good shape at the end of the next 30,000 miles with V.E.P. as it would have been at 20,000 using ordinary oil. Until meanwhile you've pocketed real savings in gasoline and oil, too.
V.E.P. SAVES WEAR
1. THREE TIMES THE RESISTANCE TO "SHOCK" caused by quick starts, high speeds, motor-braking . . . to extreme heat and pressure of today's motors.
2. AVOIDS "FIRST-MINUTE" DAMAGE. A "magnetic-like" film of V.E.P. clings to cylinder walls overnight . . . gives protective lubrication during critical warm-up period.
3. RIDS YOUR MOTOR OF HARMFUL SLUDGE, CARBON, VARNISH. "Housecleans" motor . . . then keeps it clean. Protects against harmful acids caused by products of combustion.
SAVES GASOLINE
V. E. P.'s cleaning action frees valves and piston rings . . . gives you a tighter seal . . . saves lost compression . . . turns gasoline into power instead of waste. A clean motor is a more efficient motor, a more economical motor.
SAVES OIL
By freeing valves, tight rings, unplugging the slots in your oil rings, V. E. P. prevents burning of excessive oil in combustion chamber, conserves it, instead.

Boy, 16, Tells 'Poetic' Story of Slaying

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Finally, we have formulization of the thought which long has been in the minds of observers—that the United States, Britain and Russia were bound to emerge from the war as the Big Three who would be guardians of the remodeled world until it reached its majority.

This trio represents the great bulk of the resources and strength of the globe. They will form an invincible, but benovolent, partnership.

We used to speculate about how America and Britain could maintain order in a naughty world if they only would combine their vast strengths to that end. Not only has this "impossibilty" been achieved, but mighty Russia, which exercises such great influence over both Europe and Asia, now has joined the brotherhood.

That to me is the significance of the Anglo-Russian treaty of mutual assistance and the subsequent agreements between Washington and Moscow. Since America and Britain already were in accord, the three nations now march as one toward fulfilment of the historic eight-point program for a better world laid down in the Atlantic conference between Roosevelt and Churchill. When that plan has been achieved it will have answered the dreams of man since dreams began.

We undoubtedly stand on the threshold of one of the major epochs of history. The opportunity is about to be given us to do more than ever has been done before in implementing the teachings of the sermon on the mount, which marked another great epoch. We are reaching this opportunity through a valley of tears—but we are arriving.

Few developments could have given the allied peoples greater courage to carry out the immediate task before us—the wiping out of Hitler and Hitlerism. This momentous agreement comes as we finally have struggled to the crest of the hill and are at grips with Hitler in the decisive struggle.

Out in the Orient the Japs, unhappily nursing their wounds from Midway, must be uneasy over the Allied agreements. They undoubtedly are worrying for fear there is soundness in the belief expressed in congressional quarters in Washington that the understanding between the President and Soviet Foreign minister Molotov may result in the eventual opening of Russian air bases to American bombers operating against Japan.

This fear on the part of the Nipponese, by the way, might be sufficient to impel them to attack Russia in the near future, so as to gain the benefit of co-operating with Hitler's drive in the west.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Can't Print That!

(A compendium of tales that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If you find in them any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead—you've probably guessed right!"

JOHNNY is a bandleader newly arrived on the big time. For years he toiled in other maestros' bands, always hoping for the day when he'd be his own boss. Besides him on this slow and arduous climb to the top was his wife, who in the best story-book manner shared his discomforts, his discouragements, his spells of being penniless.

Kilgallen

But she didn't mind, because she had faith in Johnny and knew that some day he'd make the grade and they could live in clover and laugh at the lean days on the way up.

But it didn't work out that way. The bigger he got the less she saw of him, and the more he found it necessary to sit with the various glamor girls who came to hear his band. One of these was a famous actress, and she and Johnny hit it off very well—so well that when the subject of marriage came up in the conversation one evening, she hinted that maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea for her and Johnny, if only Johnny were free.

So he broke the news to his wife.

After weeks of emotional agony, Mrs. Johnny finally gave in, and several months later, allowing for the due processes of the law, they were divorced.

Then a funny thing happened. The actress, in the meantime, had gone around with so many different lads that she hardly remembered Johnny's name, let alone recalling a promise to marry him. So Johnny is out in the cold all around, and what do you think he's doing to cure his heartache? Why, he's trying to make dates with his wife, of course.

But you can't print that. Mrs. Johnny has taken a lot and will probably take more. Maybe she's glad to get him back.

Pierre is one of those no-visible-means-of-support continentals who find New York so pleasant these war days and nights. He is tall and handsome and a wonderful dancer, his manners are entrancing, and women find him irresistible even with the world at war and more serious things to think about.

By women I should have specified that I meant older women—the kind who ought to know better. Pierre likes the pretty, young kind better, but he can't afford to waste his time with them—not when he can make so much money with those over forty.

Pierre has a fool-proff formula. He romances the aging wives (did I say that he only bothers with those who are married?) until he knows just about how much they are good for in the way of jewelry and cash. Then, when he feels the time is ripe, he swipes what he wants to.

And can the poor ladies yell "copper?" Of course they can't not without explaining to the coppers (and their husbands) just how Pierre happened to be within snatching reach of the diamond brooch on that particular evening. They're only too glad to keep quiet and forget about the whole thing.

But, even though New York is a big town, Pierre has just about used up all his available numbers, and the going isn't too good for him. So he has taken to peddling a spot of narcotics here and there, and Uncle Sam—a somewhat different adversary from a deluded matron—is eyeing him. In fact, Uncle Sam has just about got him surrounded, and the papers any day will tell the story that Pierre has been caught.

But you can't print that. It might get Pierre barred, from some of the chic bistros, where he is still pointed out as a "celebrity."

ARMY OFFICIAL PRESSES FOR GAS RATIONING

Patterson Urges Nation-Wide Limit as Move to Save Rubber Supply.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Proponents of nation-wide gasoline rationing as a rubber conservation measure found their position enhanced today despite the forthcoming scrap campaign which may yield 700,000 tons or more of reclaimed rubber.

Undersecretary of War Patterson flatly recommended the far-reaching step in testimony before a congressional committee and blasted the prospects of a senate group which hopes to retread enough tires to avoid rationing outside of the east.

Following Patterson's remarks, the OPA announced extension of the east coast's temporary rationing plan to July 15, when the permanent system will become effective, and doubled the value of the current ration unit to enable motorists to get through the additional two weeks. The temporary system had been scheduled to end June 30.

The increase of the ration unit from three to six gallons of gasoline becomes effective at 12:01 a. m. Monday. Card holders who have exhausted all units on their cards by Monday may apply to local rationing boards for enough gasoline to last them during the first two weeks of July.

Additional significance was attached to Patterson's statement in that he spoke as a member of the war production board which has had a program for national rationing under consideration for several weeks.

The nation's war planners, from WPB chairman Donald M. Nelson on down, have repeatedly emphasized the critical rubber shortage and reportedly view gasoline rationing as the only solution.

Rubber Czar Arthur Newhall has openly opposed voluntary attempts at conservation as unsuitable and endorsed rationing of gasoline as the most equitable and quickest method to preserve the country's automobile tires.

Patterson was outspoken in his opposition to the senate bill for use of 3,500 tons of crude and 90,000 tons of reclaimed rubber annually to retread 30,000,000 tires.

The undersecretary declared that the needs of the armed forces come "ahead of any civilian supply."

CITIZENSHIP CONTRIBUTIONS EXPLAINED TO CATHOLIC GRADS

St. Peter's 39 high school graduates were charged with saving their own souls and the souls of others as their contribution to American citizenship in an address by Rev. William McKeown of Upper Sandusky, at the annual commencement exercises held in the church last night.

"You have had a Christian environment all through your schooling," the speaker reminded the class, "and along with the secular subjects of education there has been the constant permeating of the truths of religion."

The church was filled for the one-hour service as parents and friends watched the graduates receive their diplomas from Msgr. R. G. Goebel, pastor of St. Peter's church, at the end of the service.

Speaking from the text, "Lord to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life," Rev. McKeown pointed out the advantages of education and told the graduates they "have much to contribute to the wholesomeness of American citizenship."

"You are going out into a world of senseless contradictions fortified by the splendid character of Christ's own truths," he told the class.

"We are living," he added, "in one of the strange interludes of history a time between times a time between an era that is gone and one that is to come."

"If you would make your life make sense," he admonished the students, "you must see that it corresponds with the first principle of serving God and country—that of saving your own souls—since this is the will of God."

In closing, the speaker warned the graduates "not to look back to the false paradise out of which men are being driven but to look courageously and hopefully to a new day that will dawn."

Msgr. Goebel was assisted in presenting the diplomas by Rev. John Flynn, an assistant pastor at St. Peter's, who called the roll. Other assistants were Rev. Russell Gillig, Rev. Bertrand Schenk and Rev. George Rinkowski.

The girl graduates made a pretty picture in their white caps and gowns and colorful shoulder corsages while the boys of the class were gowned and capped in gray. They were escorted in the processional by their fellow high school classmen.

The graduates were: Genevieve Busenski, Beatrice Walter, Catherine Berges, Patricia Sheafer, Mary Rahall, Ruby Stemmetz, Jeanette Cross, Jean Griffith, Marjorie Schnug, Margaret Schadek, Elizabeth Yanoschek, Rose Palumbo, Evelyn Swetlick, Mary Sedlak, Mary Pinka, Angeline Spitaleri, Lorraine Baxter, Eileen Irwin, Cora Converse, Dorothy Bishop, Dorothy Kozik, Patricia Dropsey, Joseph Timmer, John A Mauer, Joseph Marfia, Raymond E. WANTS WOMEN AT PEACE TABLE

Australian Lecturer Declares They Should Be 'Hard-Boiled.'

NEW YORK —(INS)— American women should demand a seat at the peace table, Mrs. Linda Littlejohn, Australian lecturer and mother of a British commando soldier maintained today.

And when they get that seat, she told the National Women's Council of the Navy League of the United States, they should be "hard-boiled" in dictating peace terms to the Axis.

"The German women wanted war as much as the men," she said.

Reading tastes are inclined to change for the vacation season but Joseph Davies' book, "Mission to Moscow," continues to head the reserve list for non-fiction at the Mansfield Public Library. Eliot Paul's "The Last Time I Saw Paris," is running the Davies title a close second, however, while in the fiction line, Henry Bellaman's "King's Row" and Louis Bromfield's new book, "Until the Day Break," hold top place on the reserve list.

Several of Mansfield's garages, vacated because of wartime restrictions on automobile sales, may be turned into fire stations within the next year. Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger is investigating the possibility of using old garages and other buildings for emergency fire stations to be used by auxiliary firemen of the civilian defense program. Equipment for the stations will be supplied by the federal government after 150 men have been trained locally.

The evening that the circus plays in town isn't a very good time to try to get a group together—particularly if it's a group of boys 16 to 19 years of age. But members of the Mansfield Legion Cadets demonstrated last night how serious they are about the new cadet organization, when more than 65 reported for drill at the Armory. Drills will be held regularly on Thursday evenings henceforth, and will be compulsory unless the members are excused. Last evening's drill was under the direction of five young men who have received military training—Wesley Carr, jr., Richard Schettler, Robert Leisy, Warren Bradford and Nick Weamer. Legionnaires sponsoring the group began measuring members for the uniforms they will receive shortly.

Registrations will be received Saturday, however, at the four other stations in the 10-township area served by the Mansfield rationing board. They are at the Bellville town hall, the Butler council room, Lucas high school, and Ontario school.

Approximately 850 registered Thursday at John Simpson. Today's registration there is for persons whose names start with the letters I, J and K. The Monday registration is for those in the L, M and N classification.

YOUTH ADMITS SHOOTING HIS STEP-FATHER

Says He Walked Into OSU Classroom, Said 'I'm Going To Kill You.'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — A psychiatrist was called today to examine a high school honor student who "very poetically" related how his stepfather was shot to death in an Ohio State university laboratory classroom.

His heart pierced by a .32 caliber bullet, Dr. Charles R. Owens, 37, was found dead yesterday by Prof. Joseph H. Koffolt and several students who were attracted by a shot.

Pudgy 16-year-old Richard Steadman Thompson was quoted by Coroner Edward E. Smith as saying:

"I thought about killing him Tuesday and I've had dreams about it, too."

Assistant Prosecutor William Bryant said Thompson spoke "very poetically" and told of being reprimanded by his mother and step-father, Dr. Owens, a chemical engineering instructor, for refusing to search for work.

Bryan said the boy hugged a volume of Byron's poems and recalled that there seemed to be four solutions to his problem, suicide, murder or convincing each of his parents he should not work. Thompson then added, Bryan asserted:

"I was like a person with four doors and had only one of the doors to escape. There was a fifth door. That's insanity, but of course you can't control that.

"It seemed like he was trying to get my mother away from me so she wouldn't like me any more."

Juvenile Judge Clayton Rose, who also questioned Thompson, declared "there is some indication the trouble is mental."

Smith asserted that Thompson recalled finding a .32 caliber revolver in the attic yesterday and took it to the home of a friend to repair a broken cylinder.

Campus Officer William North, who arrested Thompson, said the boy related that he walked into the classroom at noontime and told Owens who was alone: "I'm going to kill you."

"The boy told me his father had been aggravating his mother and this seemed to him to be the best way to end the trouble," North continued.

"He said he had a .32 caliber gun with only one cartridge, so he also got a long hunting knife in a sheath and said if the bullet didn't kill his stepfather, the hunting knife would finish the job."

Returned to the scene the boy read poetry and quoted Shakespeare while awaiting removal to the juvenile detention home.

Army Set to Act Unless Strikers Go Back to Work

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Major George Becker, U. S. army air corps plant protection chief here, indicated today the army will act in terminating a work stoppage at the Cleveland plant of the Aluminum company of America if 120 furnace tenders do not reutrn to work.

Latest of a long series of labor-management difficulties at the plant, this one started at 1:30 a. m., yesterday morning when 40 members of the morning shift staged a sit-down. Succeeding shifts arrived at the plant but did not go to work.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche spent most of the morning meeting with representatives of the CIO Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union and the company in an effort to end the stoppage which has resulted in a production loss of 205,000 pounds of war castings daily.

Major Becker said he will issue a statement of government policy on the strike shortly.

Frocks Chic Under WPB Rulings

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer.

Many women all over the country are still a little bewildered over the recent War Productions Board fabric rulings governing the manufacture of dresses, so this department will attempt to clarify the situation.

Evening dresses will not be banned They will continue to be made and will be as feminine and appealing as ever. Although there may be an economy of material, there will be no economy in beauty.

Dresses will not be standardized. There will be wide variety in style. The government has no desire to dress the women of our country in a uniform. On the contrary it recognizes fashion as an important morale builder, and permits designers to create different styles to their heart's content, as long as they do not use more material than has been allowed.

Skirts will not be shorter than they are now. A dress made according to the regulations in size 16 may be 43 inches long. Other sizes have proportionate lengths, which mean that skirts as they are now will be the right length for the duration. The slim skirted silhouette will continue.

Full Sleeves Out.

Dolman, balloon and leg-of-mutton sleeves are definitely out. Sleeves on dresses will continue to be comfortable, but they will be slim in line and will not have French cuffs.

The three dresses shown here are New York creations and examples of high style clothes that conform to the government regulations.

The softly tailored two-piece outfit (right) is made of sherbet pink spun rayon. The skirt is sewed on a band and a minimum of fabric is consumed. There are no cuffs, pockets or extra frills. This model is distinguished by the unusual use of tucking, and the self buttons with a pearl disc edge and a plastic rose motif in the center of each.

The dinner gown (left) is of classic beauty and willowy grace It is made of pale gray and lemon peel yellow crepe. The pencil slim skirt boasts a new interpretation of the peg-top silhouette with its artfully draped front fullness.

The black crepe dress (center) is made with the peg-top line and a slim skirt and short sleeves. It has pink French dots outlining the pockets, and the epaulet straps on the shoulders are held with pink buttons. It is an excellent style for daylight to dark dining.

Tall Girls Have Dress Problems

By MME. QUI VIVE

Measurements taken of college women prove that the Uncle Sam's daughters are growing taller. Observe high school girls; most of them are taller than their mothers. They're husky vitamin babies, got stuffed with good chow in infancy, ate their carrots and spinach, and now look at them!

Shoe dealers have known for the last ten years or more that the feminine foot is getting bigger and better. In grandma's time, when she was a young lady, size two shoes were not unusual, and a five was a disgrace. Now seven is a modest size. The idea that a small foot is a beauty asset has gone glimmering; the size of the foot should be in proportion to the measurements of the body.

Tall women fancy they have special grievances, the chief one being the embarrassment of dancing with men shorter than themselves. And, of course, they couldn't possibly think of marrying one of them. That cuts down the number of matrimonial prospects.

They complain that, because they are tall, they must be on their dignity. No cutting up after the fashion of the cuties. They can't even be coy without looking silly. Well, what of it? The coys and the cut-ups don't get very far. Everybody is wise to them.

Knee-length skirts are not for the elongated lady, though some of them seem to think so. The position of the hem line is extremely important; a lift of an inch or so will throw body lines out of proportion. The placing of the belt is also something to be considered seriously. If the torso is short, the dropping of the girdle is advisable. The long-waisted woman must lift hers slightly.

Frocks and coats must be of simple cut; in fact, simplicity of costume is especially necessary. The pint-sized girl can be fluffy with plenty of sartorial fixings and get away with it, but the tall one must avoid the slightest semblance of over-dressing. No spreading lingerie bow over the chest, no extravagant decorations of any kind. Unnecessary dress accessories make her look larger.

Girls of high school age who find themselves rapidly outgrowing their clothes whinny sadly, wonder if they are going to be giantesses. Growth is a strange, mysterious process, and nothing is to be done about it. If Mrs. Nature decides to stretch a girl out to six feet, she will go ahead and do it.

One must carefully avoid overweight. The tall, slender darling is regal and lovely, especially if she has a flair for dress, carries her clothes beautifully. But height and bulk just make too much gurl in one package.

Can Foods and Save

For the men behind the men behind the guns—and the women and children, too—build a supply of delicious home canned fruits and vegetables. Home canning is economical and easy, too. But make your prepartions carefully. Don't choose just any utensils. Preserving kettles, colanders, ladles and other utensils in gray porcelain enameled ware, pictured above, are sanitary and easy-to-clean canning aids. The oblong enameled bake pan makes an ideal container for glass jars while they are being filled.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

THE COLOR left Lillian's cheeks at my words, and there were sudden lines around her mouth.

"You mean Ronald, I suppose?" she said.

"Yes, I do," I returned. "We brought him with us and he is now down-stairs. He came down from Yale, eager to do anything he can to help, and is almost insane with grief. Will you let him come up to see you? It would mean so much to him."

She was silent for a minute, her face turned away.

Finally she turned toward me again and I saw that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Of course I will see him," she said. "I only hope that he will forgive me."

"There will be no question of forgiveness in Ronald's mind," I told Lillian reassuringly.

"What do you mean by that," she queried; "that he never realized my opposition to him, or that he is willing to blot out all my pettiness from his memory because of our common grief and terror?"

"A little of both," I answered, feeling my way carefully. "He knew, of course, that you were opposed to Marion being bethrothed to him, but I think he believed that most of your objections were based on Marion's extreme youth and the fact that she was just entering college. I am sure he had no inkling—or at least only a faint one—that you disliked him personally."

Lillian's Admission

"But I didn't do that," she said. "I always have thought him a most charming boy."

"But not the one you would have chosen for Marion," I said.

Her eyelids drooped for an instant, then she faced me honestly.

"How well you know me!" she said. "Yes, it's true that I did not think him suited to Marion, but I tried to disguise it."

"You did disguise it, from Ronald," I said. "That's what I am trying to tell you. He has no idea that there is any need for him to forgive you for anything."

She lay quiet and thoughtful a moment.

"What shall I say then?" she asked, like a bewildered child.

"Just greet him cordially—affectionately, if you can manage it. Tell him how glad you are that he is here, helping in the search for Marion, and then be guided by what he says. But do not even hint that you ever had any objection to Marion's betrothal except her youth."

Wants Them to Marry

"And I wish now," she said vehemently, "that I had urged her to leave college and marry Ronald."

"Better not tell her that," I said, smiling, "if you do not want to have your words come back to you for eating, when Marion is finally restored to you."

"I won't eat them then," she said. "Will you send him up now?"

"I'll tell him you're waiting for him," I said, "and I want you to see him alone."

She nodded her acquiescence, and I went down to the library where I found Ronald gazing into space.

"Mrs. Underwood wishes to see you," I told him, and piloted him upstairs to Lillian's living room.

"I'll wait here in the hall for you," I said. But it was fully fifteen minutes before he came out again, his face showing that Lillian had forgotten her own grief and terror in allaying his.

"Let us go down to the library before we talk," I said in low tones, and we went downstairs together.

Fully Reconciled

"Isn't she wonderfull?" he said as soon as I had closed the library door behind us. "No wonder Marion is so marvelous, with a mother like that. But, you know, I'm a bit bewildered—"

He hesitated, and I knew I would have to help him.

"Tell me, Ronald," I said gently.

"It's only this," he said, flushing. "In the old days I knew that Mrs. Underwood was opposed to there being any formal engagement between Marion and me, because we were so young. But I also felt, sometimes, as if there was something about me she did not quite like. But tonight she couldn't have been sweeter to me if I had been her own son."

"Perhaps that is because she hopes you will be, as soon as you and Marion are through college," I answered.

Boy Wants Own Choice Of Bride

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should a boy's parents have something to say in the matter of choosing his bride? Or is a boy of 19 safe in trusting his own judgment as to the choice of his life companion?

There are possibly two sides to this problem, but the poor young man who has written me sees only his side of it.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Dad is paying my expenses through college, and I still live at home. When I finish school, they have planned—I mean Mother and Dad—to have me go into my uncle's office. That part is fine.

"But here's what I don't like. They've chosen the girl they want me to marry. She's fairly good looking, has well-to-do parents and probably would make some man a good wife. But not me. Mother invites her to the house and either leaves us alone or gives me the money to take her to a show or concert. In a short time they'll have me engeged to her. I don't even like her.

"And worse than that, I'm in love with another gul who is so independent that I'm sure Mother and Dad would never approve of her.

"Do you suggest that I leave home, which would mean giving up college and the job afterwards? Or shall I stay and persuade the girl I love to marry me now, secretly?

"The real trouble is that my beliefs are American, while my parents, European born, think it's up to them to choose my wife and plan my whole life.

"Worried."

I suspect there's much to be said about marriages arranged by the parents, and that love is only one element of marriage. Such marriages, I have no doubt, last as well and often result in as much happiness as is the case in more romantic unions.

But we cannot forget that we are living in a country and at a time when young people have their way about this, as well as about other matters. Parents who have planned to arrange their children's marriages for them, and who don't want a mutny on their hands, had better go about the matter with almost superhuman delicacy and tact.

However, I consider this young man hardly shows himself mature enough to arrange his own life. Without knowing it, he is too much dominated by his parents to be a very useful husband to any girl—at present.

He must talk things over with his parents. I am seriously shocked at his readiness to deceive them while accepting their kindness and protection. He must tell them he doesn't feel grown up enough to marry, or to plan for marriage. He must warn them it isn't fair to the girl they favor to throw her at the head of a youth who is fascinated by someone else.

When they understand, I'm sure his parents will agree to his being free for a couple of years longer—as far as marriage is concerned. The young man must learn to be honest and straightforward or there will be unhappiness in store for that future bride of his.

"The Authority on Authorities"

MISPLACING THE LEAD

It is sometimes well to violate the customary injunction to keep the lead, following a successful finesse, in the hand from which the finesse was originally led. Some other suit may require finessing in the opposite direction, in a situation which requires two leads of it. In that event you may wish to switch the lead to the opposite hand on an earlier trick by overtaking one of your otherwise good cards.

Did you ever break a kibitzer's heart? East practically did so with this deal. After the diamond 7 was led to the Q and K, East laid down the club A and then the club 9, letting it ride. The club K then dropped the Q and two more clubs were cashed. The heart 9 brought forth the J and K, marking the Q in the North hand. East's only chance to get his Q now was to drop the heart K if it was unguarded, but the laying down of the A failed to accomplish that. As a consequence, the opponents then scored tricks with the Spade K and A, and two diamonds, chastising the declarer.

East could have made the contract easily if, after winning tricks with the diamond K and club A, he had led the club 9 and overtaken it with the club 10. Then, after a heart lead bringing the J and K, he could have again gone back to the dummy with the club 8 to the K, finished up the club suit and then finessed hearts a second time. Thus, he would have taken one trick in diamonds, five in hearts and five in clubs, a total of 11, and would have lost tricks only to the spade A and diamond A.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, June 13.

The lunar transits having effect on the affairs of this day may be considered fairly fortunate and encouraging, particularly as they bear influence on the personal life. There may be benefits or favors coming from relatives, superiors or elders, although it would be well to exercise much vigilance against deception, misrepresentation, distortion or other treacheries in connection with business contracts, writings or legal documents. Shun legal entanglements and fraud.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anctipiate a fairly prosperous and pleasant year, with affairs of a social or domestic nature engaging the attention. There may be benefits or gifts from elders or relatives, but in all associations there is need for alertness against fraud, deception, trickery and dangers from theft or falsity in papers, contracts, correspondence and litigation.

A child born on this day may be gifted with fair social or artistic abilities, with cleverness and versatility in business, although inclining to employ expediency rather than principle in its transactions.

FRIENDLY EIGHT CLUB.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Coolridge golf course is getting some promotion under its new manager, Fred Huntsman, and Coolridge stick swingers seem to like the idea.

First of a series of special golf events will be a blind bogey tournament next Sunday, which is Flag day. Similar events are being planned for other holidays, and special occasions, according to Huntsman.

And the social side of the Royal and Ancient pastime is not being neglected. Coolridgers are still talking about the big party Fred tossed last Saturday night, a party which I was supposed to attend even in the wee sma' hours and couldn't because of a terrific chunk of sunburn I picked up that afternoon at neighboring Liberty pool.

But here is an item which Huntsman wants clearly understood is no part of club promotion

For the remainder of the season, men in the uniforms of Uncle Sam's armed forces are extended the courtesy of the course This means they can play at Coolridge without paying greens fees, as much and as often as they like.

* * *

"This is the least we at Coolridge can do for our soldiers," Huntsman declared. "Give them a little U. S. O. at home when they are on furlough. And this isn't a promotional stunt."

* * *

Quite a few of the regular Coolridge golfers are now in uniform, and more are on the waiting list. They'll probably be among the first to take advantage of Huntsman's free golf offer.

But Mansfield soldiers who had not been in the habit of playing at Coolridge need not feel backward about accepting the courtesy of the course It's a bona fide offer and open to all.

* * *

Now most of the Coolridge golfers probably never noticed such things, since they are off the line from tee to green, but the soldiers are promised by Katie Warga and Sophia Meder that they'll feel right at home in the rough to the right of No. 2 fairway It has FOX HOLES

Katie's drive landed smack in a hole two feet in diameter and two feet deep the other day. Landed in the water at the bottom of the pit

'Casual water," said Katie, and tossed out without penalty

* * *

And Soph shoved an approach shot down a drain pipe at the right, and rear of No 2 green. What she said hasn't been reported

More on the Mansfield baseball situation:

Joe Atton's Athletic Supplies and Red Hamman's Mansfield Travellers will tangle for sure on Sunday, June 21, probably at Liberty park You have Joe Atton's promise for that

"We would have gotten together this coming Sunday," says Joe, "but Red wanted a little time to smooth up his newly organized aggregation.

"We might have gotten an out-of-town team for our opener, but they probably would want a guarantee that would make our collection for the U S O useless. All the collection would go to the visitors. Now we'll really do some good for the U. S O."

Indians Win Again On Rally

Steve Gromek, Ex-Brave, Credited With Victory.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) —Riding high after taking three straight from Washington, the Cleveland Indians play their third night game in four days when they open a four-game series with Philadelphia tonight.

Manager Lou Boudreau named Mel Harder to pitch the Tribe to its eighth straight victory over the Athletics.

Floodlight or sunlight doesn't seem to affect the Indians' habit of coming from behind with a last minute rally to win

The Tribesmen repeated their two previous nocturnal triumphs against Washington by breaking lose yesterday in a ninth-inning rally to win 8 to 6.

On the short end of a 6 to 4 score in the ninth, the Tribesmen pushed over four runs on hits by Oris Hockett, Jeff Heath, and Les Fleming, two walks, an outfield fly, and a passed ball

Cleveland's other big inning was the sixth when three runs crossed the plate on doubles by Jim Hegan and Fleming, a walk and a Washington infield error

Chubby Dean allowed a trio of runs in the initial frame, but tightened up. He was relieved in the eighth, however, and Steve Gromek won his first victory this season.

The Chicago Cubs had Bill Lee and Claude Passeau, their veteran pitchers, on the block last winter.

Today Passeau and Lee between them have accounted for 17 of the Cubs' 25 victories in the National league and one wonders where the sixth place Chicago club would be if either or both of these big righthanders had been traded

Lee won his eighth game Wednesday and Passeau followed with his ninth yesterday in the shape of a five-hit 7-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils

It was Passeau's 11th straight complete game and his seventh straight win, although the sequence was interrupted by a siege of appendicitis which kept him in a hospital all last week.

The only other National league encounter—Brooklyn Dodgers vs St Louis Cardinals—was postponed because of the weather

Half the American league program also had to be postponed

The Boston Red Sox completed a sweep of their three-game series with the St. Louis Browns by winning 8-7 on a ninth inning run which Jim Tabor singled home

The New York-Detroit game was halted in the third with the Tigers ahead 2-1

ZANESVILLE—(AP)— Springfield bounced out of the Mid-Atlantic League cellar last night by winning both games of a double-header from Zanesville, giving idle Erie undisputed second place.

Birdies Dot Toledo Scores

Forty Four Turned In at Inverness.

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—Sixteen of the nation's hot-shot professionals aimed to lay down another birdie barrage today in the second round of the $7,650 eighth annual Inverness best-ball matches, with 14 of the play-for-pay boys pursuing those torrid Texans, Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, the 1941 winners.

* * *

The Lone Star state lads ripped six strokes off par yesterday, each getting three birdies, to win a four-up decision over Denny Shute and E J. (Dutch) Harrison. That put the defending champions out front, but they meet the second place duo, Henry Picard and Sam Byrd, today.

Picard and Byrd scored a two-up decision over Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper, the Miami four-ball tourney winners, to get the runner-up spot.

The contestants scored 44 birdies yesterday, but the opening round feature was furnished by Lawson Little, 1934 and 1935 amateur grand slammer, and 1940 National Open king He scored seven birdies while partner Lloyd Mangrum came through with two, for a best ball count of 62, nine under par, and a one-up decision over Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson. Nelson scored five birdies.

Little sank birdie putts ranging from four feet to 40 feet, and on the long ninth his 15-footer for an eagle rimmed the cup. His own score for the 18-hole route was 64, seven under par.

* * *

In the other opening match Horton Smith and Chick Harbert finished even with Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron, each with cards of 67

Army Plans Two Gridiron Teams

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The Army will put two football teams into action—made up of former college and professional greats—in six weeks of charity games against the country's mightiest professional teams, it was learned today

An Army spokesman said they will begin practice in August with the first game scheduled against the Washington Redskins in the Los Angeles coliseum on the 28th of that month.

One team will play in the western half of the country and the other in the east.

A game usually played between the Giants and the college all-stars in New York will match the Giants against the Army all-stars instead, the spokesman said.

Providents Go to Chicago

Get Youngstown Girl As Extra Pitcher.

Mansfield Provident Loan girls, twice softball champions of Ohio, tonight embark on the biggest trip of their careers outside of tournament play, leaving at 7 p m for Chicago where they are booked for Saturday and Sunday games.

* * *

They'll meet the famous Garden City club at the Garden City park, considered one of the best softball diamonds in the country.

* * *

The Pitts girls Betty and Dorothy, from North Ridgeville, who had been scheduled to make the trip with the Providents have found they will be unable to get away, and the Providents are taking a pitcher from Youngstown, named Fisher, who is a veteran of national tournament play

* * *

The Providents yesterday made a pitching find, Ethel Hall former twirler for the Akron Awnings and Akron Goodyears, now of Mansfield, who also will be taken on the trip.

* * *

The Garden Cities recently defeated the famous Cecil Township, Pa, team which took four victories from the Providents two years ago

Columbus Birds Blow Hot, Cold

(By Associated Press)

The Columbus Red Birds, head men of the American Association last year and once highly favored to repeat for the championship, never have hit their old pace in the 1942 season and their 6 to 5 loss last night to Minneapolis was another example of how it's been all along—hot and cold.

* * *

Playing the seven-inning first game of a double-header—the second game was called off because of the weather—the Red Birds went into the final frame trailing, 5 to 0. Then they rallied.

Eddie Lukon blasted a three-run homer Catcher Tommy Heath banged out a second round-tripper that tied the score

But Heath the hero was soon the goat The Millers filled the bases with two out Pitcher Frank Gabler slipped a third strike past Huck Geary but the ball got away from Heath and Geary legged it to first, Wilfrid LeFevre scoring.

In other games, the Kansas City Blues, dropped a 4 to 3, 11-inning decision to Indianapolis, and St Paul beat Toledo, 6 to 2. Weather-shortened contest of six innings

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

(By Wide World)

NEW YORK—Squire Gene Sarazen, who probably is the No 1 exhibition golfer, says the time has come to cut down on war relief exhibitions because "they're beginning to defeat their own purpose." . . . Gene's idea is to concentrate on the big events like the Hale America and the Ryder cup matches that will bring out a lot of exhibitons have each golfer buy one $25 war bond, besides those he's buying anyway, and toss it into a golf pool . . . Ford Frick, the National league prexy, figures that take of almost $14,000 for the Cards' relief game was just as good a showing as Brooklyn's $60,000 — considering the way the two clubs usually draw and that the Browns played one only nine days before the Cards.

THE PRACTICAL SIDE

Reporting that other Pacific Coast league clubs are adopting the Seattle team's practice of raising the American flag before each game, a Seattle sports columnist commented: "It's patriotic, and the drift of the flag shows the outfielders how the wind is blowing."

Unknowns Have Chance at Men's Tennis Championships

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Do you play tennis, Bub—better than fair tennis? Well, then, let's not be wasting time. Run out and have that racket restrung, shake the moth balls out of those flannel pants and break open the piggie bank. If you can get to New York within two months, you may return home with the 1942 men's national singles championship.

Ridiculous? Most certainly not. If you have a friend, bring him along and you may cart away the doubles title, too. The requirements are simple—five dollars cash for the entry fee, a moderate measure of ability and plenty of confidence.

The fact is, tennis—men's tennis—is in an alarmingly shaky condition. War and other factors have cut heavily into the ranks. As matters are balanced now, the national championships at Forest Hills will be as wide open as Joe E Brown's mouth and the eventual title winner probably will be as obscure as a Scotland Yard inspector.

The eight top ranking men will not be on hand for the 1942 title contest Five from the second flight of 10 are not available for competition One by one all the glittering name players have dropped from sight. They have turned professional, they are serving with the army or they are in the navy. Actually, no sport has been harder hit.

One official of the USLTA, a gentleman who refused to be quoted by name, told me today that the 1942 championships will be unique in two ways. They will be all-California affairs and they will be won by John Smiths, John Does or Tom Browns. Ted Schroeder, now in the naval reserve, is the only man in the top eight who may find the time to head east for the big show

Californians will have all the edge for two reasons—for the most part they are younger and not yet subject to the draft and they can practice through the winter. To date, there has been no appreciable curtailment of the sport on the Pacific coast. Tournaments have been held on schedule and they have been patronized as well as might be expected.

In the east, the situation is not quite so settled. Spring Lake has been cancelled and the historic Seabright invitational may be next The eastern grass courts championships will be played as usual at Rye but the nationals will be doubled up at Forest Hills. In the past, only the singles have been played there. The doubles were held at Longwood

That racket ready yet, Bub?

Stirring tribute to the U. S. marines, the technicolor production, "To the Shores of Tripoli", opening Saturday at the Ohio features Randolph Scott, Maureen O'Hara and John Payne. 2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Coolridge golf course is getting some promotion under its new manager, Fred Huntsman, and Coolridge stick swingers seem to like the idea.

First of a series of special golf events will be a blind bogey tournament next Sunday, which is Flag day. Similar events are being planned for other holidays, and special occasions, according to Huntsman.

And the social side of the Royal and Ancient pastime is not being neglected. Coolridgers are still talking about the big party Fred tossed last Saturday night, a party which I was supposed to attend even in the wee sma' hours and couldn't because of a terrific chunk of sunburn I picked up that afternoon at neighboring Liberty pool.

But here is an item which Huntsman wants clearly understood is no part of club promotion:

For the remainder of the season, men in the uniforms of Uncle Sam's armed forces are extended the courtesy of the course. This means they can play at Coolridge without paying greens fees, as much and as often as they like.

* * *

"This is the least we at Coolridge can do for our soldiers," Huntsman declared. "Give them a little U. S. O. at home when they are on furlough. And this isn't a promotional stunt."

Quite a few of the regular Coolridge golfers are now in uniform, and more are on the waiting list. They'll probably be among the first to take advantage of Huntsman's free golf offer.

But Mansfield soldiers who had not been in the habit of playing at Coolridge need not feel backward about accepting the courtesy of the course. It's a bona fide offer and open to all.

* * *

Now most of the Coolridge golfers probably never noticed such things, since they are off the line from tee to green, but the soldiers are promised by Katie Warga and Sophia Meder that they'll feel right at home in the rough to the right of No. 2 fairway. It has FOX HOLES.

Katie's drive landed smack in a hole two feet in diameter and two feet deep the other day. Landed in the water at the bottom of the pit.

"Casual water," said Katie, and tossed out without penalty.

And Soph shoved an approach shot down a drain pipe at the right, and rear of No. 2 green. What she said hasn't been reported.

* * *

More on the Mansfield baseball situation:

Joe Atton's Athletic Supplies and Red Hamman's Mansfield Travellers will tangle for sure on Sunday, June 21, probably at Liberty park. You have Joe Atton's promise for that.

"We would have gotten together this coming Sunday," says Joe, "but Red wanted a little time to smooth up his newly organized aggregation.

"We might have gotten an out-of-town team for our opener, but they probably would want a guarantee that would make our collection for the U. S. O. useless. All the collection would go to the visitors. Now we'll really do some good for the U. S. O."

Indians Win Again On Rally

Steve Gromek, Ex-Brave, Credited With Victory.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)—Riding high after taking three straight from Washington, the Cleveland Indians play their third night game in four days when they open a four-game series with Philadelphia tonight.

Manager Lou Boudreau named Mel Harder to pitch the Tribe to its eighth straight victory over the Athletics.

Floodlight or sunlight doesn't seem to affect the Indians' habit of coming from behind with a last minute rally to win.

The Tribesmen repeated their two previous nocturnal triumphs against Washington by breaking lose yesterday in a ninth-inning rally to win 8 to 6.

On the short end of a 6 to 4 score in the ninth, the Tribesmen pushed over four runs on hits by Oris Hockett, Jeff Heath, and Les Fleming, two walks, an outfield fly, and a passed ball.

Cleveland's other big inning was the sixth when three runs crossed the plate on doubles by Jim Hegan and Fleming, a walk and a Washington infield error.

Chubby Dean allowed a trio of runs in the initial frame, but tightened up. He was relieved in the eighth, however, and Steve Gromek won his first victory this season.

The Chicago Cubs had Bill Lee and Claude Passeau, their veteran pitchers, on the block last winter.

Today Passeau and Lee between them have accounted for 17 of the Cubs' 25 victories in the National league and one wonders where the sixth place Chicago club would be if either or both of these big righthanders had been traded.

Lee won his eighth game Wednesday and Passeau followed with his ninth yesterday in the shape of a five-hit, 7-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils.

It was Passeau's 11th straight complete game and his seventh straight win, although the sequence was interrupted by a siege of appendicitis which kept him in a hospital all last week.

The only other National league encounter—Brooklyn Dodgers vs. St. Louis Cardinals—was postponed because of the weather.

Half the American league program also had to be postponed.

The Boston Red Sox completed a sweep of their three-game series with the St. Louis Browns by winning 8-7 on a ninth inning run which Jim Tabor singled home.

The New York-Detroit game was halted in the third with the Tigers ahead 2-1.

IDLE ERIE TAKES SECOND POSITION

ZANESVILLE—(AP)— Springfield bounced out of the Mid-Atlantic League cellar last night by winning both games of a double-header from Zanesville, giving idle Erie undisputed second place.

The Cardinals won the first game 3 to 0 and the nightcap 7-2 to break the Erie-Zanesville tie for second. Canton defeated Dayton 7 to 0.

Birdies Dot Toledo Scores

Forty Four Turned In at Inverness.

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—Sixteen of the nation's hot-shot professionals aimed to lay down another birdie barrage today in the second round of the $7,650 eighth annual Inverness best-ball matches, with 14 of the play-for-pay boys pursuing those torrid Texans, Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, the 1941 winners.

* * *

The Lone Star state lads ripped six strokes off par yesterday, each getting three birdies, to win a four-up decision over Denny Shute and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison. That put the defending champions out front, but they meet the second place duo, Henry Picard and Sam Byrd, today.

Picard and Byrd scored a two-up decision over Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper, the Miami four-ball tourney winners, to get the runner-up spot.

The contestants scored 44 birdies yesterday, but the opening round feature was furnished by Lawson Little, 1934 and 1935 amateur grand slammer, and 1940 National Open king. He scored seven birdies, while partner Lloyd Mangrum came through with two, for a best ball count of 62, nine under par, and a one-up decision over Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson. Nelson scored five birdies.

* * *

Little sank birdie putts ranging from four feet to 40 feet, and on the long ninth his 15-footer for an eagle rimmed the cup. His own score for the 18-hole route was 64, seven under par.

In the other opening match Horton Smith and Chick Harbert finished even with Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron, each with cards of 67.

Army Plans Two Gridiron Teams

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The Army will put two football teams into action—made up of former college and professional greats—in six weeks of charity games against the country's mightiest professional teams, it was learned today.

An Army spokesman said they will begin practice in August with the first game scheduled against the Washington Redskins in the Los Angeles coliseum on the 28th of that month.

One team will play in the western half of the country and the other in the east.

A game usually played between the Giants and the college all-stars in New York will match the Giants against the Army all-stars instead, the spokesman said.

BETTINA FAVORED TO DEFEAT ALLEN

CHICAGO —(INS)— Melio Bettina, heavyweight contender from Beason, N. Y., was favored to win his 10-round match tonight in the Chicago stadium from Altus Allen of Chicago.

Bettina, a southpaw boxer, has won 11 straight matches and in his 74 appearances in the ring has scored 23 knockouts. After his engagement tonight, Bettina will leave for Cleveland where he is to fight a rematch June 23 with Harry Bobo whom he previously has defeated.

Providents Go to Chicago

Get Youngstown Girl As Extra Pitcher.

Mansfield Provident Loan girls, twice softball champions of Ohio, tonight embark on the biggest trip of their careers outside of tournament play, leaving at 7 p. m. for Chicago where they are booked for Saturday and Sunday games.

* * *

They'll meet the famous Garden City club at the Garden City park, considered one of the best softball diamonds in the country.

The Pitts girls, Betty and Dorothy, from North Ridgeville, who had been scheduled to make the trip with the Providents, have found they will be unable to get away, and the Providents are taking a pitcher from Youngstown, named Fisher, who is a veteran of national tournament play.

* * *

The Providents yesterday made a pitching find, Ethel Hall former twirler for the Akron Awnings and Akron Goodyears, now of Mansfield, who also will be taken on the trip.

* * *

The Garden Cities recently defeated the famous Cecil Township, Pa., team which took four victories from the Providents two years ago.

Columbus Birds Blow Hot, Cold

(By Associated Press)

The Columbus Red Birds, head men of the American Association last year and once highly favored to repeat for the championship, never have hit their old pace in the 1942 season and their 6 to 5 loss last night to Minneapolis was another example of how it's been all along—hot and cold.

* * *

Playing the seven-inning first game of a double-header—the second game was called off because of the weather—the Red Birds went into the final frame trailing, 5 to 0. Then they rallied.

Eddie Lukon blasted a three-run homer. Catcher Tommy Heath banged out a second round-tripper that tied the score.

But Heath the hero was soon the goat. The Millers filled the bases with two out. Pitcher Frank Gabler slipped a third strike past Huck Geary but the ball got away from Heath and Geary legged it to first, Wilfrid LeFevre scoring.

In other games, the Kansas City Blues, dropped a 4 to 3, 11-inning decision to Indianapolis, and St. Paul beat Toledo, 6 to 2. Weather-shortened contest of six innings.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(By Wide World)

NEW YORK—Squire Gene Sarazen, who probably is the No. 1 exhibition golfer, says the time has come to cut down on war relief exhibitions because "they're beginning to defeat their own purpose." . . . Gene's idea is to concentrate on the big events like the Hale America and the Ryder cup matches that will bring out a lot of bucks, and instead of a lot of exhibiitons have each golfer buy one $25 war bond, besides those he's buying anyway, and toss it into a golf pool. . . . Ford Frick, the National league prexy, figures that take of almost $14,000 for the Cards' relief game was just as good a showing as Brooklyn's $60,000 — considering the way the two clubs usually draw and that the Browns played one only nine days before the Cards.

THE PRACTICAL SIDE

Reporting that other Pacific Coast league clubs are adopting the Seattle team's practice of raising the American flag before each game, a Seattle sports columnist commented: "It's patriotic, and the drift of the flag shows the outfielders how the wind is blowing."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Art Rosenbaum, San Francisco Chronicle: "In ye olden days, a good coach was one who could find a summer job for every man on his squad. . . . Now a good coach is one who can be certain his men will return from their summer jobs."

Bissman Golfers Go to Mt. Vernon

Bissman Stroh's Beers golfers make their first trip of the season Sunday when they go to Mt. Vernon to meet the Sunset club niblick wielders.

* * *

Bissman's expect to take a 12-man team on the Mt. Vernon jaunt, leaving here about 9 o'clock in the morning.

* * *

The Mt. Vernon club is reported to have assembled a formidable array of shotmakers to oppose the Mansfielders.

WED AT HOME

ZANESVILLE —(AP)— Catcher Harry Land of the Zanesville Mid-Atlantic club and Miss Chloe Belle Compton of Catlettsburg, Ky., will be married in front of home plate at the Zanesville-Canton game Monday night, they announced yesterday.

BILLY SOOSE WEDS SMITH COLLEGE GIRL

EAST GREENVILLE, Pa.—(AP)—Billy Soose, former middleweight boxing champion, will be married Sunday to Miss Margaret Unger, former Smith college student, her mother announced today.

The lanky Farrell, Pa., fighter will come here for the ceremony from Norfolk, Va., where he is stationed with the U. S. naval reserve.

Trojan Mentor Counts on Title

LINCOLN, Neb —(AP)— Coach Dean Cromwell of Southern California is confident of an eighth straight N. C. A. A. track championship in the annual meet opening at 6:30 p. m. (CWT) tonight.

* * *

Summing up his squad's chances, Cromwell commented, "We just happen to have the boys." The squad is the largest entered by any school.

* * *

Eagerly awaited is the duel between Hal Davis, California, and Barney Ewell, Penn State, in the 100, which fans figure to be the outstanding race in the finals. Ewell is defending champion, having won the last two years. Davis has a time of 9.4, equaling the world mark.

Ewell also is defending champion in the 220. Other title-holders returning included Bob Wright, Ohio State, both hurdles.

Bob Payne Turns Down Galion Job

GALION—The problem of completing the coaching staff of Galion high school remains yet to be solved following the announcement of Superintendent M. A. Povenmire Thursday that Robert W. Payne, former Mt. Gilead high school star athlete, who was hired recently, has notified the board of education that he has accepted a coaching position at Jackson high school.

Payne was hired May 5 as assistant coach to head football Coach James L. Lymper and basketball Coach Bob Sheffer. He has coached during the past year at Columbiana high school and was appointed as assistant here at a salary of $1550. At Jackson high school Payne will be physical education director and head coach. Jackson is the county seat of the county by the same name in southern Ohio.

Unknowns Have Chance at Men's Tennis Championships

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Do you play tennis, Bub—better than fair tennis? Well, then, let's not be wasting time. Run out and have that racket restrung, shake the moth balls out of those flannel pants and break open the piggie bank. If you can get to New York within two months, you may return home with the 1942 men's national singles championship.

Ridiculous? Most certainly not. If you have a friend, bring him along and you may cart away the doubles title, too. The requirements are simple—five dollars cash for the entry fee, a moderate measure of ability and plenty of confidence.

The fact is, tennis—men's tennis—is in an alarmingly shaky condition. War and other factors have cut heavily into the ranks. As matters are balanced now, the national championships at Forest Hills will be as wide open as Joe E. Brown's mouth and the eventual title winner probably will be as obscure as a Scotland Yard inspector.

The eight top ranking men will not be on hand for the 1942 title contest. Five from the second flight of 10 are not available for competition. One by one all the glittering name players have dropped from sight. They have turned professional, they are serving with the army or they are in the navy. Actually, no sport has been harder hit.

One official of the USLTA, a gentleman who refused to be quoted by name, told me today that the 1942 championships will be unique in two ways. They will be all-California affairs and they will be won by John Smiths, John Does or Tom Browns. Ted Schroeder, now in the naval reserve, is the only man in the top eight who may find the time to head east for the big show.

Californians will have all the edge for two reasons—for the most part they are younger and not yet subject to the draft and they can practice through the winter. To date, there has been no appreciable curtailment of the sport on the Pacific coast. Tournaments have been held on schedule and they have been patronized as well as might be expected.

In the east, the situation is not quite so settled. Spring Lake has been cancelled and the historic Seabright invitational may be next. The eastern grass courts championships will be played as usual at Rye but the nationals will be doubled up at Forest Hills. In the past, only the singles have been played there. The doubles were held at Longwood.

That racket ready yet, Bub?

Bass Season Opens Tuesday

Five New Spots Lure Anglers of State.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Bass fishermen in Ohio may take to the streams after their favorite variety after next Monday midnight.

They can fish the slow-moving weedy streams for large-mouth bass or make their casts in swift rivers and creeks for the fighting small-mouth.

The minimum legal length for bass is 10 inches and the creel limit is six. All persons over 18 must have a license.

The state division of conservation has opened five new "fishin' holes" for Ohio anglers. The streams and lakes have been stocked with large-mouth bass, crappies, bluegills and bull heads.

Included among the new bodies of water open this year are Van Buren lake, in Hancock county; Decker lake, in Miami county; Shoonover lake, in Allen county; Twin lakes, in Delaware county, and the Massillon-Fulton canal, in Stark and Summit counties. The Lake Erie district does not open until July 1.

Marine Tribute.

Stirring tribute to the U. S. marines, the technicolor production, "To the Shores of Tripoli", opening Saturday at the Ohio features Randolph Scott, Maureen O'Hara and John Payne. Produced with the co-operation of the U. S. government the picture was filmed for the most part at the San Diego Marine Base where hundreds of enlisted men took part in the production. Randolph Scott plays a hard-boiled sergeant who turns a raw recruit into a fighting man. Payne is the recruit and Miss O'Hara has the part of a navy nurse.

Fifth Column Plot.

"Saboteur," Alfred Hitchcock's revelation of enemy activities inside war-time America, opens Saturday at the Madison. Robert Cummings, Priscilla Lane and Otto Kruger top the cast, Kruger playing the role of an Axis agent. Lavishly filmed the picture is highlighted by a cross-country chase that ends at the Statue of Liberty. Cummings has the role of a young aircraft factory worker who is falsely accused of sabotage. "Henry and Dizzy," a Henry Aldrich feature, is the second production.

China Locale.

More than just a story of China's efforts to keep supplies rolling over the famed Burma road, the current attraction at the Ritz, "A Yank On the Burma Road," is a tale of the Chinese people and a spirit that will not be conquered. Barry Nelson, Laraine Day and Keye Luke are in the cast of the film that has to do with a truck driver on the Burma road and the girl he meets there. "Stagecoach Express," with Don "Red" Barry is the co-feature.

Dramatic Story.

Orson Welles who startled a nation not so many years ago with his "men from Mars" broadcast appears in "Citizen Kane," the Park attraction which he authored, produced and directed. Welles portrays the title character, an American tycoon with a lust for power, through the years from 25 to 70. Most of his New York Mercury theater actors appear with him including Ruth Warwick. Roy Rogers in "Man From Cheyenne," is the second attraction.

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

for attack on ships in the harbor at Tulagi at dawn.' It was a complete surprise. Our task force had been hunting the enemy in the Coral sea.

"Long before dawn, we were ready and anxious for the take-off.

"We got over Tulagi in early morning, every plane in position and carrying a full load of torpedoes and bombs. We didn't know what to expect but there below we could see through rifts of clouds the harbor filled with troops and transports."

Taylor told of the launching of the actual attack.

"Well, I sorta figured the Marquis of Queensbury rules were out," he said, "so I said to Bill, 'You hit 'em high and I'll hit 'em low. From then on every man for himself.'

"As soon as I saw what ships were in the harbor, I instructed the pilots which ones to hit. In a melee there is no time for detailed assignments. We just went to work with torpedoes and bombs.

"The only thing I remember clearly as the dive-bombers pushed over into screaming dives was that each pilot was yelling something into his radiophone, some cussing but most yelling 'Remember Pearl Harbor.'

"We did not catch the Japanese exactly flat-footed, but they got up no anti-aircraft fire until the attack had started. By that time, it was too late. Let Bill tell you what it looked like when our boys finished."

"When we completed the attack," Burch said, "the harbor was filled with sunken and burning ships, a few of which managed to crawl to the beach to keep from sinking.

"Nine were definitely sunk, possibly eleven. This included two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports. In addition we sank numerous small boats and lighters by strafing. We believe we also sank a seaplane tender and a third transport. The whole harbor was strewn with smoking wreckage.

"And I am happy to say we lost absolutely nothing. A couple of our boys brought back a few holes in their planes, but none of the personnel was even scratched.

"This was the first touchdown in the game at Coral sea, which lasted a week."

Asked about the main action at Coral sea, Burch said:

"All that I can tell is that we gave them a larger dose of the same stuff we handed them at Tulagi."
